8,000 GERMANS DEAD IN BELGIAN BATTLE

Many Wounded and Prisoners in Wednesday's Battles at Liege and Spa—Germans Take Refuge in Holland—Reinforcements Coming.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Brussels, Aug. 6.—The correspondent of the Brussels Gazette telegraphed from Liege today that the German forces suffered the loss of 8,000 men in their defeat by the Belgians.

The correspondent paid high tribute to the valor of the Belgians saying: "The 11th Belgian brigade, after successfully driving back and attacking the 7th Germany army corps, pursued the fleeing Prussians with such energy that the general in command had to order the troops to turn back.

"They were outside the range of action by the fort artillery when they were halted. The Belgian troops showed magnificent enthusiasm.

"A number of wounded Germans fled to Dutch territory thereby giving rise to the belief that the enemy has been completely routed. They suffered considerable losses, these being estimated at 8,000 killed. Very many were also wounded.

"Our losses were relatively slight. The Germans attacked at 7 a. m. Wednesday striking the Chaudfontaine and Boncelles forts from the southeast. The enemy on the right banks of the Meuse also began to bombard Fernelle fort across the river. A fine resistance was made by this fort and the attack was victoriously repulsed.

"The Belgians captured seven guns and also a large number of prisoners. A Zeppelin airship is reported to be advancing towards Liege as this despatch is sent."

The prisoners taken by the Belgian troops began arriving here today. Many of them were wounded and had to be taken to hospitals. By 10 a. m. 600 of the defeated Germans had arrived under guard of Belgian soldiers detached from active duty. The latter brought thrilling stories of a battle east of Liege that lasted for 17 hours.

The murderous fire of the Belgian artillery at Liege mowed down hundreds of the Germans as they advanced on that city after shelling and burning Visé and Argentan.

A Belgian aviator flying high over the country kept the garrison of the Liege forts apprised of the German's movements and the gunners were able to direct a deadly fire. Because of the information given by this aviator the gunners in many instances directed their cannon at points where the German staffs were located and the mortality among the German officers was exceedingly high.

Many troops that escaped and German officers, including a lieutenant, were completely annihilated, all five men being blown to atoms by exploding shells concentrated upon their position.

The services of the Belgians when a finally lost to the Germans when a monoplane piloted by a German officer, attacked the aerial hero. As the German air machine dashed forward from the rear, the Belgian turned to meet him.

With his engines running at full speed, the Belgian manœuvred for an opening to ram the German and when he secured his opportunity he crashed head on into the enemy's monoplane. The motors of both exploded and the two machines fell to the ground, a tangled wreck.

The retreating Germans are being harassed as they fall back, the Belgians report. King Albert has reached the front and taken active command. Part of the German army sent against Liege has been captured and scores of prisoners are being taken by the Belgians as they press forward.

Belgian officers stationed at the war office believe that Gen. von Emmich committed a grave tactical error in dividing his forces. The German, 80,000 strong, set out from Aix-La-Chapelle with heavy artillery and proceeded west, crossing the frontier near Eysden, a town of Netherlands. Within Belgium, Gen. Emmich detached 20,000 cavalry and infantry and sent them south toward Spa.

The main body, consisting of the 7th and 10th Imperial corps, crossed the Meuse after leaving Visé in ruins and then advanced southeast on Liege. All the artillery was taken with the main force, that proceeding toward Spa taking only a few light field guns.

The little southern army, sent with the purpose of flanking the Belgians on their right wing, seized the railroad as it advanced and pressed successfully through Verriers and Peppinster without meeting desperate resistance.

Between Peppinster and Spa the Germans found the track torn up. They were compelled to halt their armored trains and as they left the cars they received a withering fire from the Belgians protected by trenches that they had hastily dug. With the Belgian rifle fire pouring upon them, the Germans finally succeeded in forming for the conflict.

With two regiments of Uhlans at their head the Germans advanced and drove the Belgians from their trenches and back toward Spa. Retreating slowly, the Belgians drew their forces into a trap that had been set. Heavy artillery posted on hills along a ravine through which the Germans had to pass as they pursued the Belgians suddenly opened fire.

Deadly shells rained upon the Uhlans, each one killing scores as it exploded. Within a few minutes the two regiments of cavalry had been practically annihilated, the survivors being taken to Peppinster.

One report received here said that the train had been blown up, but the

MAURETANIA PURSUED BY GERMAN CRUISER

Big Liner Escorted Into Halifax Harbor by British Cruiser Has 1,400 Passengers for New York on Board—Essex Steamer to Aid

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Halifax, N. S., August 6.—Conveyed by the British cruiser Essex, the Cunard liner Mauretania, on her way to New York from Liverpool, with 1,400 passengers aboard, steamed into Halifax harbor shortly before noon today.

While at sea the Mauretania sent a wireless to the Essex stating that a German cruiser was following her and asked assistance. The Essex came up immediately and stood by the Mauretania until she came into port. As soon as she had safely conveyed the Mauretania into port the Essex went to sea again at full speed to give aid to the Lusitania, which is on her way to Europe and wireless for assistance yesterday.

New York, Aug. 6.—The liner Uranium reported on her arrival here today that she had intercepted a wireless message from a British cruiser to the liner Lusitania saying that the two German cruisers that had been pursuing the liner, had been sunk by the British warships.

If the news brought by the Uranium is confirmed, a naval battle has been fought less than 200 miles from New York. It is probable that if two German cruisers were sunk the Lusitania was sent out as a decoy and the Kaiser's ships caught in a cleverly planned trap.

The Karlsruhe and Dresden are the two German ships that have been most frequently mentioned as lying east of the United States in wait for British liners.

The Karlsruhe although a small boat, was one of the fastest and newest ships in the German navy. The boat made 27 knots on her trial trip in 1912 and is said to have exceeded that time in tests since then. The Karlsruhe went into commission in 1912.

war office has received no confirmation of this rumor. London, Aug. 6.—The Belgian minister was notified today that in yesterday's fighting the Germans lost soldiers estimated to number 8,000 and seven guns. The official dispatch he received, says the Germans were "repulsed, not routed."

Fierce fighting continues in northeastern Belgium. During the night the Germans constructed a pontoon bridge over the Meuse but this was destroyed at dawn by the Belgian artillery. Forty thousand Germans are marching west to reinforce Gen. von Emmich. All the hospitals are filled with wounded. Most of these are Germans.

At Noorbeck the townsfolk have turned over their homes for Red Cross hospitals.

GERMAN CRUISER 'AFTER LUSITANIA'

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 6.—A foreign warship, believed to be either the cruiser Dresden or the cruiser Karlsruhe, is pursuing the Cunard liner Lusitania, which sailed from New York early yesterday morning.

This was learned definitely today when the oil tank liner Tonawanda arrived from Antwerp.

Capt. Hart stated that yesterday his wireless operator heard a dispatch from the Lusitania to the British cruiser Essex saying that a foreign warship was following her. The Lusitania asked the Essex to stand by.

3,000 AMERICANS GET OUT OF PARIS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Paris, Aug. 6.—Packed in like sheep, 3,000 American and other foreign tourists left here today on the three special trains that were run to Boulogne where connections are made with the boats that cross the channel to England.

For many hours before the arrival of the first train a huge crowd collected in and around the station. The arrival of the train was the signal for a frantic rush, and many women and children were injured in the mad scramble to get aboard.

The scene was repeated when the second train stopped to take on passengers and a crowd numbering several thousand, unable to get on to the first two trains, engaged in a fight to get aboard the last special. More than 1,000 persons jammed their way into the coaches of the train, which normally can carry only about 400 passengers, and some of those who could not get into the coaches or on the platforms risked the hazards of a ride on the car roofs rather than remain longer in Paris.

Many of the women left behind, fearing that no more trains would be sent to Boulogne for some time, wept hysterically. The officials, however, gave assurances that they would run trains to the seaport town as often as possible until all tourists had been given a chance to leave, unless the war situation made the running of the trains inadvisable.

ITALY NOT SCARED BY GERMAN ULTIMATUM

Remains Neutral Although Told She Will be Considered an Enemy to Germany Unless She Joins in the War Against the Triple Entente.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Rome, Aug. 6.—Germany today demanded that Italy fulfill her obligations as a member of the Triple Alliance and join with her allies, Austria and Germany, in the conflict with the members of the Triple Entente.

Herr De Flotow, the German ambassador, presented to Foreign Minister San Giuliano, a note from Berlin, which was a practical ultimatum, intimating if Italy refused to act in accord with her obligations Germany would be compelled to consider her in the same position as those nations with which she is openly at war.

Paris, Aug. 6.—Italy has replied to Germany's ultimatum with a statement that Germany was the aggressor in the conflict with England and France and sees no necessity for altering her decision to remain neutral, according to a Rome despatch received by a news agency here today.

New York, August 6.—Italy's attitude in the present European situation has completely upset plans of the Austro-Hungarian consul to send 2,300 men from this country to join the Austrian army. The reservists were to have left New York Saturday on an Italian ship but the Austrian consul announced today that owing to the fear that Italy would join the countries now at war against Germany and Austria the men would not leave as scheduled.

The outcome of Germany's ultimatum to Italy is being awaited by the Austro-Hungarian representatives to decide on future procedure.

BRITISH FLOTILLA WINNING STRIKE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, Aug. 6.—The first naval engagement between English and German ships in the North Sea has resulted in a victory for Great Britain. The battle took place Wednesday off the Dutch coast and lasted for five hours.

Seventy English sailors were wounded and it is reported that more than 100 Germans were killed in the engagement.

The ships engaged were those of England's Third fleet and a flying squadron of German vessels, which had been sent out to protect the mine laying operations of German ships. The liner Koenigin Luise, which had been equipped with mine laying paraphernalia, was sunk by the British and a short time later two of the German boats surrendered.

The Amphion, flagship of England's flotilla, was the only British ship that sustained any noticeable damage. Her batteries were put out of commission temporarily by an exploding shell.

More than 200 German prisoners, taken from the two boats that surrendered, were landed at Harwich, Eng., and are being held there. A torpedo boat took 28 wounded to the Shetley naval station just opposite Harwich, while scores of the other wounded were landed at Harwich and taken care of in the little hospital there and in some of the public buildings that had been made into temporary hospitals upon orders from the British fleet commander.

KING SEES GERMAN AEROPLANE WRECK

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Liege, Belgium, August 6.—In full view of King Albert, who was in conference with his staff, a German aeroplane carrying six German officers, was shattered by Belgian aerial guns today. Six of its occupants were killed.

The aeroplane approached the city from the southeast and circled about the forts defending Liege. The Belgian gunners waited until it came within range and then fired. At the second shot the machine was seen to fall. It was later reported from the fort near which it fell that one man was found alive.

It is reported here that a squadron of Belgian cavalry surprised Gen. von Emmich and his staff and that the German commander narrowly escaped capture. Seven of his officers were killed.

SEALED ORDERS FOR U. S. DREADNOUGHT

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 6.—The dreadnought Florida, one of the most powerful fighting ships in the world, sailed from the Brooklyn navy yard at 10 o'clock this morning. Her bunkers were filled with coal hastily put aboard on orders from Washington and she was ready for any emergency.

Her commander was instructed to anchor off Sandy Hook and wait there for sealed orders from Washington.

The departure of the Florida followed a report that the German liner Kronprinz Wilhelm, which recently slipped out of the harbor, had been turned into a privateer and was operating off the coast.

Washington, Aug. 6.—To strictly enforce the neutrality provisions made public by President Wilson earlier in the week the navy and treasury departments today sent orders to the battleship Florida, to revenue cutters and other vessels in commission along the Atlantic coast.

Strict observance of these laws will be enforced along the entire Atlantic coast by the revenue cutter service and at the more important ports by warships. Secretary of the Navy Daniels today stated that no additional orders have been given to naval commanders to put to sea for the purpose of patrol. The battleship Florida, however, he stated, will take trips along the New England coast for observation purposes.

Some vessels held in reserve at Philadelphia may be commissioned for possible use in going abroad but no definite orders to this effect have as yet been issued.

The battleship Florida also will be watch steamers of belligerent nations, so that the neutrality provisions will not be violated.

KITCHENER NOW MINISTER OF WAR

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, Aug. 6.—Lord Kitchener, the hero of England, today took charge of the war office by virtue of his appointment as secretary of war, and assumed full control of the military operations. The chief matter taken under consideration by him were plans that had been worked out for sending 150,000 British troops to Belgium to assist the army of King Albert in repelling the German invasion.

The new war secretary issued two decrees that had been signed by King George last night. One revoked the measure prohibiting the importation of arms into Ireland. This measure was passed when the Home Rule crisis developed threats of revolution in Ulster.

The other decree declared that British subjects contributing to any loan raised in behalf of Germany or contracting with the German government would be guilty of high treason.

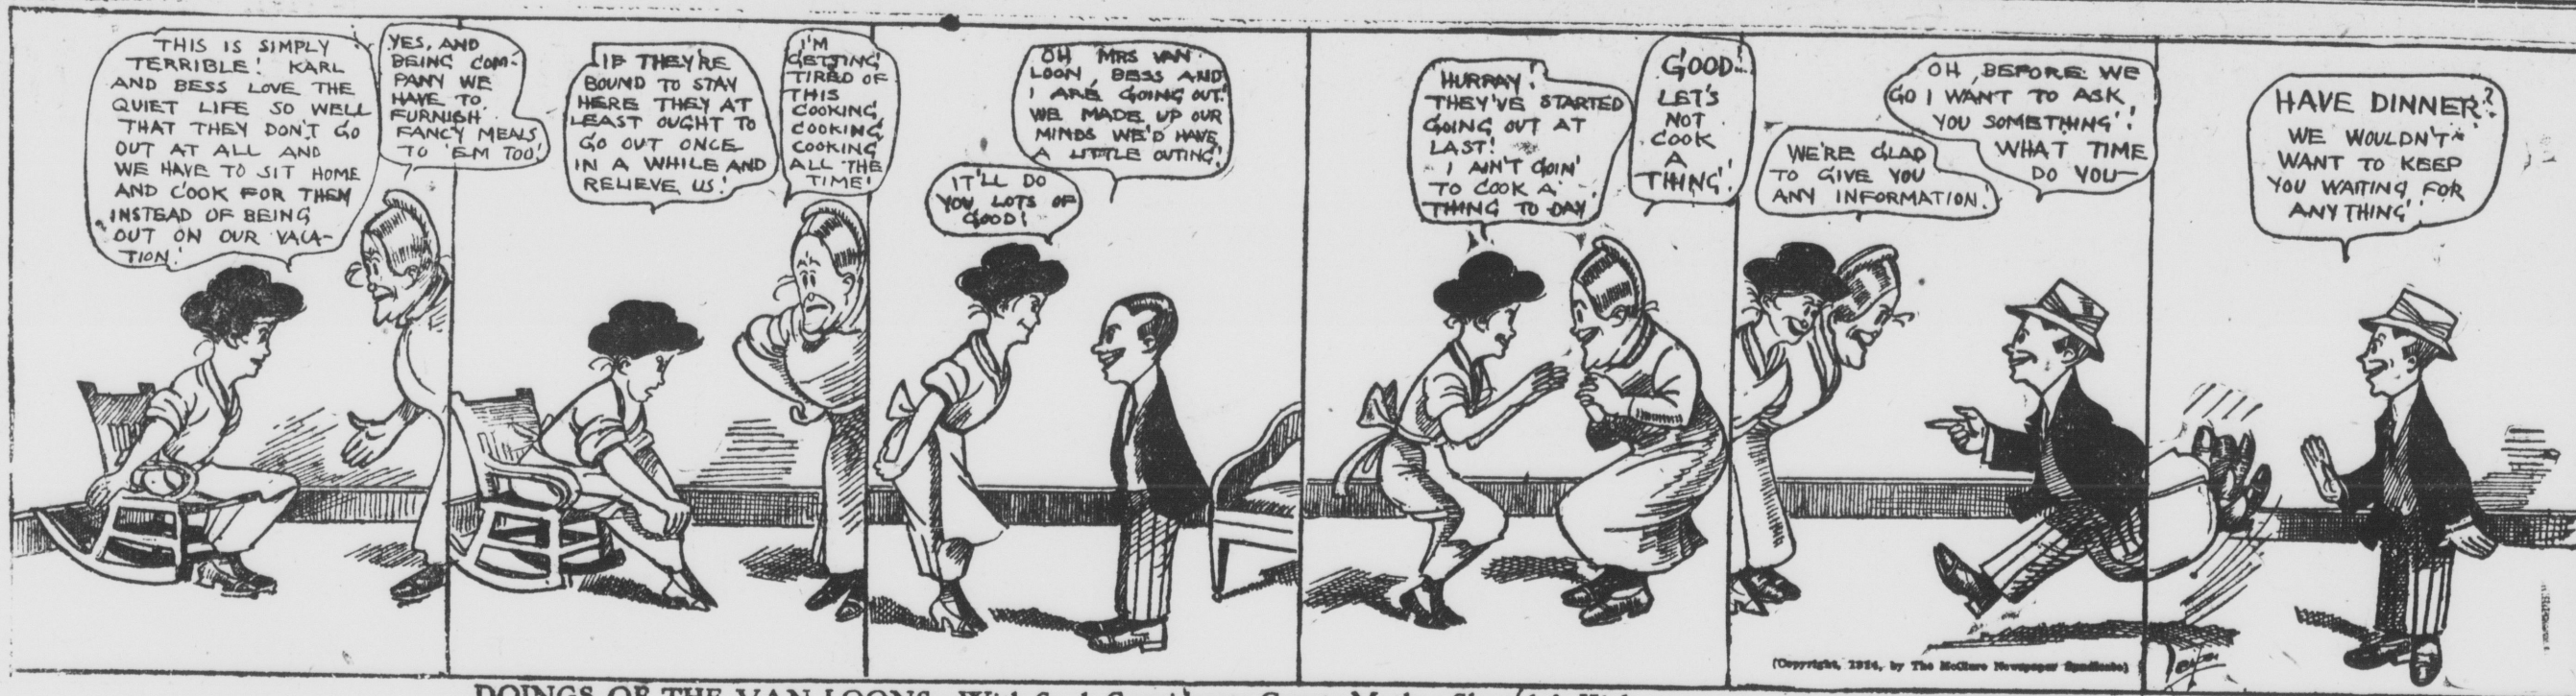

Lord Kitchener then called into conference heads of various departments of the military establishment. With many of these who have served under Col. Seeley, who retired as a result of the Home Rule crisis and Premier Asquith, who took over Seeley's duties, Lord Kitchener is on terms of close friendship and the first war council of the new secretary was in the nature of a reception.

While Kitchener was in conference with his aides, Count Lichnowsky, the German ambassador, left London and the embassy was closed. On the door was placed a card bearing the words "American embassy." A notification to callers that the affairs of the embassy had been taken over by Walter Hines Page, the American ambassador.

Count Lichnowsky boarded a special train at the Waterloo station and left for Harwich, where a special despatch boat had been placed at his disposal by the government to carry him to Germany.

WHERE ARE BRITISH AND GERMAN FLEETS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, Aug. 6.—Though Germany has suffered a severe setback in her plans to sweep across Belgian territory and establish herself in a position of strategic advantage for an assault on Paris, war experts here declare that no decisive battle will be fought on land for another week at least. They think that the great operations will begin about August 16 when France and Germany will have their massive armies in the field equipped for hostilities.

The same opinion prevails at the war office. One attaché said today that the week between August 16 and August 23 would determine in a great measure the future map of Europe and decide whether Germany and Austria are to be the dominant powers or are to be reduced to conditions of inferiority.

"And, of course," he added, "You know what we of England expect to happen."

That remark was not a boast. He was stating a fact that England is supremely confident of the outcome of the struggle on which she has entered after being threatened for several decades by the German "war lord." For hundreds of years, England has put her faith in her fleet and with the armada which she now possesses in her home waters she has no reason for losing confidence now.

"Where is the fleet?" was the question on almost every lip today. "Where is Callaghan?"

But no answer was coming from the admiralty.

From the hour that the first home fleet under Admiral Callaghan sailed from Portland harbor under sealed orders no word has been given out about her.

Another question was: "Where is the German fleet?" That too, was unanswered. The general belief was that one answer would suffice for all these questions, but no naval official would give it.

The unofficial belief was that the great bulk of the Kaiser's fighting force was in the harbor at Wilhelmshaven and that the British fleet was lying in wait for the Germans in the North Sea.

The engagement between the third fleet and German ships, which was officially confirmed today, showed there had already been fighting west of the Netherlands, but the main fleets were not engaged.

All shipping has been swept from the North Sea. Even the little fishing boats that ply back and forward have been driven off its surface. The ring has been cleared.

While anxiously awaiting news of the great naval battle in the world's history London went about its business today as usual. Naval conditions have been referred to.

Many shops that had been closed for several days re-opened this morning. Reduction of the bank rate from 10 to 6 per cent served to relieve the depression that had been felt for a week.

This action was taken after leading bankers of the city had conferred with Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George. It was decided that there was no further danger of a withdrawal of gold.

The chief signs of activity at the government offices were in the department now presided over by Lord Kitchener, the new secretary of state for war. At the admiralty everyone seemed to be taking things easy, but at the war office there was great activity.

An enormous crowd gathered about the government buildings at noon and Field Marshal Sir John French received a tumultuous ovation when he called to pay his respects to Lord Kitchener.

At all recruiting offices the names of volunteers were listed as fast as they could be written, but this failed to diminish the throng of patriotic subjects of King George anxious to join the army.

Thousands of Americans went sight-seeing today, their fears calmed by dispatches from New York stating that the cruiser Tennessee would sail today with several million dollars to relieve their financial needs.

GERMANS TO ATTACK RUSSIANS.

SERBIAN ARMY ENTERS AUSTRIA

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Nish, Serbia, August 6.—Serbian troops have succeeded in invading Austria, the war office announced today. They crossed the river Save in force on Tuesday.

The Austro-Hungarian bombardment of Belgrade continues. Several buildings, including the Royal Palace and the British legation, have been seriously damaged. A number of Serbians have been killed, though the defenders have not replying to the enemy's fire.

Fencing in the Landing.

Alexander Sturgeon on Wednesday started the work of erecting a high wooden fence around the landing of the Hudson River Day Line at Kingston Point. The fence will be equipped with a large gate that may be raised and lowered. After the fence is built no one will be able to get on the landing pier without passing through the gate. Ticket choppers will be stationed inside the gate to punch the passenger's ticket.

"And, of course," he added, "You know what we of England expect to happen."

That remark was not a boast. He was stating a fact that England is supremely confident of the outcome of the struggle on which she has entered after being threatened for several decades by the German "war lord." For hundreds of years, England has put her faith in her fleet and with the armada which she now possesses in her home waters she has no reason for losing confidence now.

"Where is the fleet?" was the question on almost every lip today. "Where is Callaghan?" But no answer was coming from the admiralty.

From the hour that the first home fleet under Admiral Callaghan sailed from Portland harbor under sealed orders no word has been given out about her.

Another question was: "Where is the German fleet?" That too, was unanswered. The general belief was that one answer would suffice for all these questions, but no naval official would give it.

The unofficial belief was that the great bulk of the Kaiser's fighting force was in the harbor at Wilhelmshaven and that the British fleet was lying in wait for the Germans in the North Sea.

The engagement between the third flotilla and German ships, which was officially confirmed today, showed there had already been fighting west of the Netherlands, but the main fleets were not engaged.

All shipping has been swept from the North Sea. Even the little fishing boats that ply back and forward have been driven off its surface. The ring has been cleared.

While anxiously awaiting news of the greatest naval battle in the world's history London went about its business today as usual. Naval conditions in the North Sea were not discussed.

Many shops that had been closed for several days re-opened this morning. Reduction of the bank rate from 10 to 6 per cent served to relieve the depression that had been felt for a week.

This action was taken after leading bankers of the city had conferred with Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George. It was decided that there was no further danger of a withdrawal of gold.

The chief signs of activity at the government offices were in the department now presided over by Lord Kitchener, the new secretary of state for war. At the admiralty everyone seemed to be taking things easy, but at the war office there was great activity.

An enormous crowd gathered about the government buildings at noon and Field Marshal Sir John French received a tumultuous ovation when he called to pay his respects to Lord Kitchener.

At all recruiting offices the names of volunteers were listed as fast as they could be written, but this failed to diminish the throng of patriotic subjects of King George anxious to join the army.

Thousands of Americans went sight-seeing today, their fears calmed by dispatches from New York stating that the cruiser Tennessee would sail today with several million dollars to relieve their financial needs.

Germans to Attack Russians.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Tsing Tao, China, Aug. 6.—The entire German squadron sailed from here today to attack the Russian fleet. All decks were cleared for action. It is believed a naval battle will be fought in Tsushima Straits.

SERBIAN ARMY ENTERS AUSTRIA

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Nish, Serbia, August 6.—Serbian troops have succeeded in invading Austria, the war office announced today. They crossed the river Save in force on Tuesday.

The Austro-Hungarian bombardment of Belgrade continues. Several buildings, including the Royal Palace and the British legation, have been seriously damaged. A number of Serbians have been killed, though the defenders are not replying to the enemy's fire.

Fencing in the Landing.

Alexander Sturgeon on Wednesday started the work of erecting a high wooden fence around the landing of the Hudson River Day Line at Kingston Point. The fence will be equipped with a large gate that may be raised and lowered. After the fence is built no one will be able to get on the landing pier without passing through the gate. Ticket choppers will be stationed inside the gate to punch the passenger's ticket.

German Trawlers Sunk.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Kirkwall, Orkney Islands, Aug. 6.—Thirteen Germans, captured by British warships in the North Sea, were landed here today. They were trawlers whose boats had been sunk by British gunners when they tried to escape.

Although the war news which we are able to receive is not complete, there can be no doubt that Germany is getting the worst of the fighting thus far. To succeed it is necessary for her to crush France quickly because she will have enough to do on her eastern borders after the slow-moving Russians get under way. The indications are that she will be unable to do this, and that long before she gets anywhere near Paris she will have to turn back to defend Berlin. She has evidently underrated France, which is not the same country it was in 1870-71. It was said centuries ago that a haughty spirit goeth before a fall.

Of course, importations of goods from Europe have absolutely stopped, and the stocks on hand cannot last very long. That means that the sale of American products ought to increase to a considerable extent. It is true that our exports are greater than our imports, and that our foreign market is gone for the time being, but our exports are largely raw materials, while our imports are mostly manufactured goods. It must be that the throwing of men out of work, which has been progressing throughout the Wilson administration, will now cease. In the end nobody will be better off, but a sort of fictitious prosperity appears to be at hand, and we should make the best of it while it lasts. It is not a time for enlarging plants, but it is a time for running them at full capacity.

One of the tobacco magnates, Mr. Whelan, says that sales of cigars and other smoking materials have been increased by the war. His explanation is that "many persons who before the European trouble were tied up in offices all day are only working part time now, thus having more of a chance to smoke." No doubt the same cause has increased the consumption of alcoholic liquors. One would suppose that a prudent man who had lost his job would practice economy, but as a matter of fact he does not do so. The average man who is used to working a good number of hours a day is like a fish out of water when he has nothing to do. We all have observed the miserable state of the man who goes to some "quiet place" for catation. He has to possess a character if he does not in his pet vices to an extent would impair his efficiency at regular work. As the hymn says: "Satan finds some mischief for idle hands to do."

Progressives who joined because they really believe the principles expressed in its platform are beginning to realize the joke which is being played upon them in the interest of the Colonel. The latter has issued general orders that Hinman is to be nominated, but Hinman has frankly declared himself opposed to the initiative, the referendum, the recall, and woman suffrage. With these issues removed from the Progressive program, what is left of it? Hinman has also declared that he is opposed to Republican and Democratic bosses, but he is silent on the subject of Progressive bosses, among whom Roosevelt is the chief, so that it is difficult for any thinking Bull Moose to get enthusiastic over that issue. Any one who cannot see that Roosevelt cares nothing about principles, but is looking out entirely for his own personal advantage, must be blind and stupid. It is evident from the remarks of Mr. Tuckerman that the Progressives of this county are not going to stay in a party which can not hope to carry an election and which repudiates the doctrines which are its only excuse for being.

JUST A THOUGHT.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

Why is it that as folk slowly move down the last slope of the life-hill they often have an impression that they are left sitting on the lonely outskirts where companionship seldom enters and where they remain, not because they want to be there, but because they are not really counted a part of the great moving throng?

Unfortunately, they do feel that way many times, and whether the years bring added sensitiveness and a sense of aloofness or whether the feeling springs from the real attitude of others with whom their declining years are passed may be hard for outsiders to judge. But it is not true that we, as individuals, in our contacts with those whose life is in "the sear, the yellow leaf," as Shakespeare puts it, know very well where the trouble rests? We know whether their natures, their nerves, their bodies have grown a bit weary, protesting and exacting and perhaps over-sensitive as well, or whether we have a share, half willingly, half unconsciously, in keeping them on the outskirts, as they say. And in either case, it is more than pathetic, for both sides are missing more than they know.

This much certainly is true: As the years multiply faster and faster and as folk grow frankly old, so far as age can make them so, they do intuitively appreciate a showing of genuine interest, the kind that springs from the heart, not a perfunctory minute or so of much-divided attention. And it is a mistake to suppose that those who placidly occupy the seats of the elders have little to give in return, by way of an interesting stock of experience and knowledge and perhaps more interesting comments. Because men and women who think and look and really live as they go accumulate much on the way, which sometimes is kept hidden from view simply because only the few pause to sound the depths that are there.

And when one seriously thinks of it, it surely is suggestive of something wrong with our adjustments when folk, interesting and alert, but grown physically old and slow, become the brighter of eye and the surer of speech because of a little sincere and lasting attention.

It was a long while ago that a woman very white of hair and a bit faltering of step—serene and sure of herself withal, in spite of her fast-gathering years—was delighted with the rare courtesy and charm of a man who went quite out of his way to be attentive and gracious to her. He was ever ready with a bit of talk that seemed far-and-away from perfunctory, and, in her eyes, he developed into a sort of modern knight. But one fatal day he fell far, far from the grace of his old-time self, not because his seeming interest and courtesy were the less, but because he actually told her they were summoned in deference to her years!

Deary me! Is ever a woman—or a man, for the matter of that—so far along the home stretch that she really appreciates attention that drops just because of her whitened locks, her slower step and all that? When it comes in the guise of an arm extended to help her, a seat or something of that nature, one fancies that the consideration for her years is mightily and thankfully appreciated. But human nature is ever the same, whether the years are few or many, and the pleasure takes wing when it is all too apparent that nothing but "respect" stands back of the attention and interest that seemed so spontaneous.

There's nothing much lovelier, in its dignified way, than the spectacle of the years passing away and leaving men and women seriously touched by their flight, to be sure, but bright and active as ever in spirit, happy in the proud consciousness that friends, kinsfolk all, enjoy their companionship every inch of the way. Maybe as folk grow older and as their physical attractions fade into the past they often feel the pressing want of little unobtrusive attentions as reminders that they are still holding fast. If that is true, then it is beautifully worth while to let them know, without a doubt.

And beside, something always comes back for the giving.

Now and then as we catch an echo from that wonderful woman, Katharine Breschkovsky, as we do once in a while when the Russian tolls light on or loosen about her in exile, or as we read a few brief extracts of a letter passed from her to friends on the outside, it is to wonder and wonder again at the mighty spirit that flames higher all the while, in spite of the fact that she has long since passed her seventieth milestone. If we need to be told that it is within the power of men and women in the decline of their years to inspire their younger friends, their children and grandchildren, let us turn to that dauntless woman whose hair has been white as snow for many a long year, and let us recall, as we must, that we can afford to sit at her feet and gain the most marvelous lessons in splendid heroism and tenacity and learn how a woman can be an inspiration to all when she is over "seventy years young."

If "the little grandmother," as she is affectionately called, had accomplished not another thing else she would be doing very much in showing the world that frailty of body, the sure traceries of age and of suffering and the loss of physical charm do not matter very much when the mind and the heart keep young.

But it is not everybody who carries that indomitable spirit tucked away under cover of the frailties of bodies, and as to the rest they are mightily, and very naturally, pleased to have friends and all just take the truth for granted—that they are as worth while and alert as ever and still have something interesting to pass along to all who will take the pains to find it.

Bad Both Ways.

Paul Rainey was describing to a New York reporter some of his adventures with lions in Nairobi. "Once, near our bait of putrid meat," he said, "I awoke from a light doze in the dawn to find a lion actually sniffing at my feet. I reached for my rifle and with a 'whoof' the lion was gone."

"You must have felt rather queer," said the reporter. "It is strange," said Mr. Rainey. "But the one thing that ran through my mind was a story—a story about a man who had staid out at a banquet very, very late. This man awoke in the dawn, and saw, perched on the foot of his bed, an organ grinder's monkey that had climbed through the window."

"His hand trembling, his eyes bloodshot, the man drew his revolver from beneath his pillow and said: 'If you're a real monkey it's a bad lookout for you, and if you're not it's a bad lookout for me.'"—New York Times.

A retired clergyman tells a good joke at his own expense. He was accustomed to officiate frequently as a vacation supply in a suburban church. One Sunday after service an old lady, the housekeeper in the home of a friend, spoke to him.

"I want to tell you, sir," she said "how much I enjoy going to church on the days that you preach."

The clergyman said that he was very much gratified.

"Oh, sir," she added, with appalling candor, "I get such a good seat then."—Newark Star.

"If the present trend of fashion keeps up," he sneered, "it won't be long before women will refuse to wear anything—certainly she won't wear a rapt expression."—New York Times.

38 LIVES LOST IN TRAIN COLLISION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Joplin, Mo., Aug. 6.—That at least thirty-eight persons were killed and twenty-five injured when a north bound passenger train on the Kansas City Southern Railway collided head-on with a Missouri and North Arkansas Railroad gasoline motor-car near Tipton Ford, ten miles south of here, was the belief of the authorities today. Exploding gasoline set fire to the debris, incinerating many of the bodies and rendering identification impossible. A mistake in orders was believed to have been responsible but the coroner and railroad officials today began a thorough investigation.

The motor-car was running on the tracks of the Kansas City Southern Railroad. Both were traveling 35 miles an hour when they met on a curve. The motor car was telescoped and its gasoline reservoir exploded, throwing burning oil over the debris. Fire quickly spread and many injured, pinned in the wreckage, were roasted alive. A number begged to be killed rather than face a slow death by fire.

Nine persons were rescued by J. J. Lauderback of Joplin, a passenger on the train who escaped by crawling through a window. A woman whom he rescued fought him because she could not return to her child, which had been caught under the wreckage.

FUNDS NEEDED FOR RED CROSS SHIP

The following telegram was received this morning, by Mrs. Clara N. Reed, chairman of the Ulster County Chapter of the National Red Cross Society:

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5, 1914.

Mrs. Clara N. Reed, Chairman of Ulster County Red Cross Chapter, 43 Crown Street, Kingston, N. Y.

Please use this appeal to raise funds for the Red Cross. During our war with Spain, thousands of dollars were sent by the European Red Cross Societies to the American Red Cross to aid in the care of our sick and wounded soldiers. Now, in the hour of their supreme need, the American Red Cross, both for the sake of humanity and to express our gratitude for their aid to us in the time of trouble and distress, has decided to charter a ship and send to each country doctors, nurses and hospital supplies. This ship, sailing under the Red Cross flag, will be under the protection of the treaties of Geneva and the Hague, and can enter any harbor for the discharge of its beneficent duty. In no other way can this trained personnel, greatly needed, reach the different countries. Protection is provided also for the personnel of the Red Cross Societies of neutral states that render aid by the treaty of Geneva. The American Red Cross appeals most earnestly to all of our people; to the governors of states, as presidents of the Red Cross state boards; to the Red Cross chapters; to mayors of cities; to chambers of commerce; to boards of trade; and to all associations and individuals, for contributions to carry on this work. Contributions may be designated by the donors, if they desire, for the aid of any special country and will be used for the country designated; but assistance will be given to all, in the true spirit of the Red Cross, represented by its motto—"Neutrality—Humanity." Grieved as we may be over this terrible war, the agonized cry of suffering men cannot appeal to us in vain. The American Red Cross asks for a prompt and generous response. Contributions may be sent to the American Red Cross, Washington, D. C., or to state and local treasurers of the Red Cross.

(Signed) AMERICAN RED CROSS.

The local treasurer is Joseph M. Schaeffer of the State of New York National Bank, and the local chairman urges a quick and hearty response to this urgent appeal from all the people of Kingston and Ulster county.

WOMAN MURDERED BY REJECTED SUITOR

Mrs. Amelia Paulus Knocked Down in the Street and Her Throat Cut by Louis Marquart, Who Escapes and is Still at Large.

Driven to desperation because he had been rejected as a suitor for her hand, Louis Marquart on Wednesday evening about 9 o'clock knocked Mrs. Amelia Paulus to the street on Third avenue and slashed her throat with a razor, severing the jugular veins. Marquart then disappeared and has not been seen since. His victim died within a short time.

For some time Marquart has been trying to get in the good graces of Mrs. Paulus, who lived at No. 88 Third avenue. Her husband was killed two years ago in the Ulster & Delaware yard. Since then Marquart has been paying her ardent attention but she scorned him. It is only within the past two weeks that her son caused Marquart's arrest for disturbing her and the recorder warned him to keep away from the woman's house.

Marquart, who is between 50 and 60 years old apparently, has a wife and several children. His wife lived in Detroit. They formerly kept house in Kingston but moved to Detroit some time ago. The husband was arrested for beating his wife and was ordered out of town by the Detroit officials. He returned to Kingston and began paying court to Mrs. Paulus. She repulsed him at every turn and finally caused his arrest. The rebuke he received at the hands of the recorder is thought to have worked on his mind to such an extent that he did not care what desperate measures he took.

During the afternoon Mrs. Paulus and two children had been spending the day at Kingston Point Park. Returning about 9 o'clock Wednesday night she started out Third avenue for her home. When in front of the residence of Jacob Brown at No. 68 Third avenue Marquart jumped out from behind a tree and knocked her down. He then did deadly execution with some kind of a sharp instrument and cut her throat from ear to ear. The children who were with her made an outcry and neighbors rushed to her side only to find that she was bleeding profusely. Dr. Stern was summoned but when he arrived the woman had bled to death. Coroner Kelly was immediately notified.

In the meantime Marquart had disappeared. He took a course through backyards to Second avenue and passed within a short distance of the house of Peter J. Hoey on Second avenue. Mrs. Hoey was alone at the time and did not know of the tragedy which had been enacted on the neighboring street. The man lingered under a tree in the rear of the yard and then took a course through Ludlum's woods. If he had followed the course he started this would have brought him out again in the vicinity of Hasbrouck and Delaware avenues toward East Kingston.

The police were at once notified and Sergeant Hanley and Policeman Dugan started out with the police rig to scour the territory adjacent to the scene of the crime. The woods were searched with electric searchlights and the trail followed to East Kingston. Every precaution was taken to cut off every avenue of escape and other officers were dispatched in automobiles and rigs to search every point in that vicinity. Every box car in the north yard of the West Shore railroad was gone over comb but the missing murderer was not apprehended.

The body of the dead woman was taken in charge by Coroner Kelly and removed to her home. The woman was felled by the assassin in the middle of the road and by almost superhuman strength he crawled to the side of the road before she was compelled by weakness from loss of blood to give up and settled into the gutter. The body was allowed to remain there as it was thought no one could touch it until the coroner arrived. Some kind of a neighbor provided a suitable covering for the corpse. The gutter ran with blood from the wounds in the woman's neck and breast. All traces of it had been obliterated during the night.

This morning Assistant District Attorney Traver and a photographer paid a visit to the scene of the crime and photographs were made. Every effort is being made by the city and county authorities to apprehend the murderer. Marquart is a Russian, between 55 and 60 years old, weighs 160 pounds, is five feet seven inches tall. He wears a black mustache streaked with gray and his dark hair is also streaked with gray. His eyes are red from some inflammation and are very shifty, the man seldom looking anyone in the face. He wore a light colored soft hat and dark suit. For some time Marquart had boarded with Julius Radatz at No. 48 Second avenue.

The body was taken charge of by Undertaker Wachmeyer. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at his late residence with interment in Montrose cemetery. She was 48 years old.

Dr. Stern and Dr. Gillette performed an autopsy on the body this morning and found that both jugular veins had been severed and there was a wound on the throat seven inches long. No other wounds were found on the body.

What instrument was used by Marquart has not been ascertained. It was probably a razor or other sharp knife, but no trace of it was found. It is likely that Marquart took it with him when he made his escape after the killing. Although some are inclined to believe that Marquart will take his own life rather than run the risk of arrest and conviction those who know him say he is a bad actor and will not stop at anything to avoid punishment for his crime. It was with this theory that the police started out on Wednesday night and every precaution was taken to prevent being ambushed by the wily Russian. If found he would have been taken dead or alive, so strong was the feeling against him.

Schermerhorn Wants to Collect For Fire at That Price.

The action brought by Nicholas S. Schermerhorn to recover $75' damages from Mrs. Hannah Stewart for cutting down five sumach trees in his yard on Cedar street was taken up for trial in city court this morning before Acting Judge Grogan and was adjourned for one week at the request of Frank Merritt, who appeared for Mrs. Stewart and asked for a jury trial. Edward McKiernan appeared for Mr. Schermerhorn. It is claimed by Mr. Schermerhorn that the latter part of July his neighbor, Mrs. Stewart entered his yard and cut down the five trees. Mrs. Stewart, on the other hand, claims that the trees originally grew on her side of the fence and grew under it into Mr. Schermerhorn's yard and that she simply cut down that part of the trees that was over on her premises as they were a nuisance.

Although the war news which we are able to receive is necessarily incomplete, there can be no doubt that Germany is getting the worst of the fighting thus far. To succeed it is necessary for her to crush France quickly because she will have enough to do on her eastern borders after the slow-moving Russians get under way. The indications are that she will be unable to do this, and that long before she gets anywhere near Paris she will have to turn back to defend Berlin. She has evidently underrated France, which is not the same country it was in 1870-71. It was said centuries ago that a haughty spirit goeth before a fall.

Of course, importations of goods from Europe have absolutely stopped, and the stocks on hand cannot last very long. That means that the sale of American products ought to increase to a considerable extent. It is true that our exports are greater than our imports, and that our foreign market is gone for the time being, but our exports are largely raw materials, while our imports are mostly manufactured goods. It must be that the throwing of men out of work, which has been progressing throughout the Wilson administration, will now cease. In the end nobody will be better off, but a sort of fictitious prosperity appears to be at hand, and we should make the best of it while it lasts. It is not time for enlarging plants, but it is time for running them at full capacity.

One of the tobacco magnates, Mr. Whelan, says that sales of cigars and other smoking materials have been increased by the war. His explanation is that "many persons who before the European trouble were tied up in offices all day are only working part time now, thus having more of a chance to smoke." No doubt the same cause has increased the consumption of alcoholic liquors. One would suppose that a prudent man who had lost his job would practice economy, but as a matter of fact he does not do so. The average man who is used to working a good number of hours a day is like a fish out of water when he has nothing to do. We all have observed the miserable state of the man who goes to some "quiet place" for recreation. He has to possess a strong character if he does not indulge in his pet vices to an extent which would impair his efficiency at regular work. As the hymn says: "Satan finds some mischief for idle hands to do."

Progressives who joined because they really believe the principles expressed in

its platform are beginning to realize the joke which is being played upon them in the interest of the Colonel. The latter has issued general orders that Hinman is to be nominated, but Hinman has frankly declared himself opposed to the initiative, the referendum, the recall, and woman suffrage. With these issues removed from the Progressive program, what is left of it? Hinman has also declared that he is opposed to Republican and Democratic bosses, but he is silent on the subject of Progressive bosses, among whom Roosevelt is the chief, so that it is difficult for any thinking Bull Moose to get enthusiastic over that issue. Any one who cannot see that Roosevelt cares nothing about principles, but is looking out entirely for his own personal advantage, must be blind and stupid. It is evident from the remarks of Mr. Tuckerman that the Progressives of this county are not going to stay in a party which can hope to carry an election and which repudiates the doctrines which are its only excuse for being.

JUST A THOUGHT.

(By Our Woman Editor.)
Why is it that as folk slowly move down the last slope of the life-hill they often have an impression that they are left sitting on the lonely outskirts where companionship seldom enters and where they remain, not because they want to be there, but because they are not really counted a part of the great moving throng? Unfortunately, they do feel that way many times, and whether the years bring added sensitiveness and a sense of aloofness or whether the feeling springs from the real attitude of others with whom their declining years are passed may be hard for outsiders to judge. But it is not true that we, as individuals, in our contacts with those whose life is in "the sear, the yellow leaf," as Shakespeare puts it, know very well where the trouble rests? We know whether their natures, their nerves, their bodies have grown a bit weary, protesting and exacting and perhaps over-sensitive as well, or whether we have a share, half willingly, half unconsciously, in keeping them on the outskirts, as they say. And in either case, it is more than pathetic, for both sides are missing more than they know.

This much certainly is true: As the years multiply faster and faster and as folk grow frankly old, so far as age can make them so, they do intuitively appreciate a showing of genuine interest, the kind that springs from the heart, not a perfunctory minute or so of much-divided attention. And it is a mistake to suppose that those who placidly occupy the seats of the elders have little to give in return, by way of an interesting stock of experience and knowledge and perhaps more interesting comments. Because men and women who think and look and really live as they go accumulate much on the way, which sometimes is kept hidden from view simply because only the few pause to sound the depths that are there.

And when one seriously thinks of it, it surely is suggestive of something wrong with our adjustments when folk, interesting and alert, but grown physically old and slow, become the brighter of eye and the surer of speech because of a little sincere and lasting attention.

It was a long while ago that a woman very white of hair and a bit faltering of step—serene and sure of herself withal, in spite of her fast-gathering years—was delighted with the rare courtesy and charm of a man who went quite out of his way to be attentive and gracious to her. He was ever ready with a bit of talk that seemed far-and-away from her purview, and in her eyes, he developed into a sort of modern knight. But one fatal day he fell far, far from the grace of his old-time self, not because his seeming interest and courtesy were the less, but because he actually told her they were summoned in deference to her years!

Deary me! Is ever a woman—or a man, for the matter of that—so far along the home stretch that she really appreciates attention that drops just because of her whitened locks, her slower step and all that? When it comes in the guise of an arm extended to help her, a seat or something of that nature, one fancies that the consideration for her years is mightily and thankfully appreciated. But human nature is ever the same, whether the years are few or many, and the pleasure takes wing when it is all too apparent that nothing but "respect" stands back of the attention and interest that seemed so spontaneous.

There's nothing much lovelier, in its dignified way, than the spectacle of the years passing away and leaving men and women seriously touched by their flight, to be sure, but bright and active as ever in spirit, happy in the proud consciousness that friends, kinsfolk all, enjoy their companionship every inch of the way. Maybe as folk grow older and as their physical attractions fade into the past they often feel the pressing want of little unobtrusive attentions as reminders that they are still holding fast. If that is true, then it is beautifully worth while to let them know, without a doubt.

And beside, something always comes back for the giving.

Now and then as we catch an echo from that wonderful woman, Katharine Freshkovsky, as we do once in a while when the Russian tolls light on or loosen about her in exile, or as we read a few brief extracts of a letter passed from her to friends on the outside, it is to wonder and wonder again at the mighty spirit that flames higher all the while, in spite of the fact that she has long since passed her seventieth milestone. If we need to be told that it is within the power of men and women in the decline of their years to inspire their younger friends, their children and grandchildren, let us turn to that dauntless woman whose hair has been white as snow for many a long year, and let us recall, as we must, that we can afford to sit at her feet and gain the most marvelous lessons in splendid heroism and tenacity and learn how a woman can be an inspiration to all when she is over "seventy years young."

If "the little grandmother," as she is affectionately called, had accomplished not another thing else she would be doing very much in showing the world that frailty of body, the sure traceries of age and of suffering and the loss of physical charm do not matter very much when the mind and the heart keep young.
But it is not everybody who carries that indomitable spirit tucked away under cover of the frailest of bodies, and as to the rest they are mightily, and very naturally, pleased to have friends and all just take the truth for granted—that they are as worth while and alert as ever and still have something interesting to pass along to all who will take the pains to find it.

Bad Both Ways.

Paul Rainey was describing to a New York reporter some of his adventures with lions in Nairobi.

"Once, near our bait of putrid meat," he said, "I awoke from a light doze the dawn to find a lion actually sniffing at my feet. I reached for my rifle and with a 'whoof' the lion was gone."

"You must have felt rather queer," said the reporter.

"It is strange," said Mr. Rainey, "but the one thing that ran through my mind was a story—a story about a man who had staid out at a banquet very, very late. This man awoke in the dawn, and saw, perched on the foot of his bed, an organ grinder's monkey that had climbed through the window."

"His hand trembling, his eyes bloodshot, the man drew his revolver from beneath his pillow and said: 'If you're a real monkey it's a bad lookout for you, and if you're not it's a bad lookout for me.'"

A retired clergyman tells a good joke at his own expense. He was accustomed to officiate frequently as a vacation supply in a suburban church. One Sunday after service an old lady, the housekeeper in the home of a friend, spoke to him.

"I want to tell you, sir," she said, "how much I enjoy going to church on the days that you preach."

The clergyman said that he was very much gratified.

"Oh, sir," she added, with appalling candor, "I get such a good seat then."—Newark Star.

38 LIVES LOST IN TRAIN COLLISION

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Joplin, Mo., Aug. 6.—That at least thirty-eight persons were killed and twenty-five injured when a north bound passenger train on the Kansas City Southern Railway collided head-on with a Missouri and North Arkansas Railroad gasoline motor-car at Tipton Ford, ten miles south of here, was the belief of the authorities today. Exploding gasoline sent fire to the debris, incinerating many of the bodies and rendering identification impossible. A mistake in orders was believed to have been responsible but the coroner and railroad officials today began a thorough investigation.

The motor-car was running on the tracks of the Kansas City Southern Railroad. Both were traveling 35 miles an hour when they met on a curve. The motor car was telegraphed and its gasoline reservoir exploded, throwing burning oil over the debris. Fire quickly spread and many injured, pinioned in the wreckage, were roasted alive. A number begged to be killed rather than face a slow death by fire.

Nine persons were rescued by J. J. Lauderback of Joplin, a passenger on the train who escaped by crawling through a window. A woman whom he rescued fought him because she could not return to her child, which had been caught under the wreckage.

FUNDS NEEDED FOR RED CROSS SHIP

The following telegram was received this morning, by Mrs. Clara N. Reed, chairman of the Ulster County Chapter of the National Red Cross Society:

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5, 1914.

Mrs. Clara N. Reed, Chairman of Ulster County Red Cross Chapter, 43 Crown Street, Kingston, N. Y.

Please use this appeal to raise funds for the Red Cross. During our war with Spain, thousands of dollars were sent by the European Red Cross Societies to the American Red Cross to aid in the care of our sick and wounded soldiers. Now, in the hour of their supreme need, the American Red Cross, both for the sake of humanity and to express our gratitude for their aid to us in the time of trouble and distress, has decided to charter a ship and send to each country doctors, nurses and hospital supplies. This ship, sailing under the Red Cross flag, will be under the protection of the treaties of Geneva and the Hague, and can enter any harbor for the discharge of its beneficent duty. In no other way can this trained personnel, greatly needed, reach the different countries. Protection is provided also for the personnel of the Red Cross Societies of neutral states that render aid by the treaty of Geneva. The American Red Cross appeals most earnestly to all of our people; to the governors of states, as presidents of the Red Cross state boards; to the Red Cross chapters; to mayors of cities; to chambers of commerce; to boards of trade; and to all associations and individuals, for contributions to carry on this work. Contributions may be designated by the donors, if they desire, for the aid of any special country and will be used for the country designated; but assistance will be given to all in the true spirit of the Red Cross, represented by its motto—"Neutrality—Humanity." Grieved as we may be over this terrible war, the agonized cry of suffering men cannot appeal to us in vain. The American Red Cross asks for a prompt and generous response. Contributions may be sent to the American Red Cross, Washington, D. C., or to state and local treasurers of the Red Cross.

(Signed) AMERICAN RED CROSS.

The local treasurer is Joseph M. Schaeffer of the State of New York National Bank, and the local chairman urges a quick and hearty response to this urgent appeal from all the people of Kingston and Ulster county.

WOMAN MURDERED BY REJECTED SUITOR

Mrs. Amelia Paulus, Knocked Down in the Street and Her Throat Cut by Louis Marquart, Who Escapes and is Still at Large.

Driven to desperation because he had been rejected as a suitor for her hand, Louis Marquart on Wednesday evening about 9 o'clock knocked Mrs. Amelia Paulus to the street on Third avenue and slashed her throat with a razor, severing the jugular veins. Marquart then disappeared and has not been seen since. His victim died within a short time.

For some time Marquart has been trying to get in the good graces of Mrs. Paulus, who lived at No. 88 Third avenue. Her husband was killed two years ago in the District of Delaware yard. Since then Marquart has been paying her ardent attention but she scorned him. It is only within the past two weeks that her son caused Marquart's arrest for disturbing her and the recorder warned him to keep away from the woman's house.

Marquart, who is between 50 and 60 years old apparently, has a wife and several children. His wife lives in Detroit. They formerly kept house in Kingston but moved to Detroit some time ago. The husband was arrested for beating his wife and was ordered out of town by the Detroit officials. He returned to Kingston and began paying court to Mrs. Paulus. She repulsed him at every turn and finally caused his arrest. The razor he received at the hands of the recorder is thought to have worked on his mind to such an extent that he did not care what desperate measures he took.

During the afternoon Mrs. Paulus and two children had been spending the day at Kingston Point Park. Returning about 9 o'clock Wednesday night she started out Third avenue for her home. When in front of the residence of Jacob Brown at No. 68 Third avenue Marquart jumped out from behind a tree and knocked her down. He then did deadly execution with some kind of a sharp instrument and cut her throat from ear to ear. The children who were with her made an outcry and neighbors rushed to her side only to find that she was bleeding profusely. Dr. Stern was summoned but when he arrived the woman had bled to death. Coroner Kelly was immediately notified.

In the meantime Marquart had disappeared. He took a course through backyards to Second avenue and passed within a short distance of the house of Peter J. Hoey on Second avenue. Mrs. Hoey was alone at the time and did not know of the tragedy which had been enacted on the neighboring street. The man lingered under a tree in the rear of the yard and then took a course through Ludlum's woods. If he had followed the course he started this would have brought him out again in the vicinity of Hasbrouck and Delaware avenues.

It is likely that he continued on toward East Kingston.

The police were at once notified and Sergeant Hanley and Policeman Dugan started out with the police rig to scour the territory adjacent to the scene of the crime. The woods were searched with electric searchlights. Kingston. Every precaution was taken to cut off every avenue of escape and other officers were dispatched in automobiles and rigs to search every point in that vicinity. Every box car in the north yard of the West Shore railroad was gone over as thoroughly as if with a fine tooth comb but the missing murderer was not apprehended.

The body of the dead woman was taken in charge by Coroner Kelly and removed to her home. The woman was felled by the assassin in the middle of the road and by almost superhuman strength had crawled to the side of the road before she was compelled by weakness from loss of blood to give up and settled into the gutter. The body was allowed to remain there as it until the coroner arrived. Some kind hearted neighbor provided a suitable covering for the corpse. The gutter ran with blood from the wounds in the woman's neck and breast. All traces of it had been obliterated during the night.

This morning Assistant District Attorney Traver and a photographer paid a visit to the scene of the crime and photographs were made. Every effort is being made by the city and county authorities to apprehend the murderer. Marquart is a Russian, between 55 and 60 years old, weighs 160 pounds, is five feet seven inches tall. He wears a black mustache streaked with gray and his dark eyes are red from some inflammation and are very shifty. The man is bald looking anyone in the face. He wore a light colored soft hat and dark suit. For some time Marquart had boarded with Julius Radatz at No. 48 Second avenue.

The body was taken charge of by Undertaker Wachmeyer. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at his late residence with interment in Montrose cemetery. She was 48 years old.

Dr. Stern and Dr. Gillette performed an autopsy on the body this morning and found that both jugular veins had been severed and there was a wound on the throat seven inches long. No other wounds were found on the body.

What instrument was used by Marquart has not been ascertained. It was probably a razor or other sharp knife, but no trace of it was found. It is likely that Marquart took it with him when he made his escape after the killing. Although some are inclined to believe that Marquart will take his own life rather than run the risk of arrest and conviction those who know him say he is a bad actor and will not stop at anything to avoid punishment for his crime. It was with this theory that the police started out on Wednesday night and every precaution was taken to prevent being ambushed by the wily Russian. If found he would have been taken dead or alive, so strong was the feeling against him.

Schermerhorn Wants to Collect For Five at That Price.

The action brought by Nicholas S. Schermerhorn to recover $75' damages from Mrs. Hannah Stewart for cutting down five sumach trees in his yard on Cedar street was taken up for trial in city court this morning before Acting Judge Grogan and was adjourned for one week at the request of Frank Merritt, who appeared for Mrs. Stewart and asked for a jury trial. Edward McKiernan appeared for Mr. Schermerhorn. It is claimed by Mr. Schermerhorn that the latter part of July his neighbor, Mrs. Stewart entered his yard and cut down the five trees. Mrs. Stewart, on the other hand, claims that the trees originally grew on her side of the fence and grew under it into Mr. Schermerhorn's yard and that she simply cut down that part of the trees that was over on her premises as they were a nuisance.

NEW RULES FOR MEAT INSPECTION

Meat Heretofore Made Into Fertilizer May be Sterilized and Sold as Second Class Product.

The new meat inspection regulations governing the slaughtering of cattle, sheep, swine and goats, and the preparation of meat food products in inspected establishments, were signed by the secretary of agriculture on July 15, 1914.

All the regulations become effective November 1, 1914, except those governing imported meats, which go into effect January 1, 1915.

The department of agriculture is limited by laws to jurisdiction over the slaughtering and packing establishments which sell their products in interstate or foreign commerce. These establishments slaughter 60 per cent of the meat used in the United States. The slaughtering and packing establishments which sell their product wholly within the state in which the animals are slaughtered are beyond the jurisdiction of the department.

The new regulations, which occupy 87 printed pages, codify the many amendments and rulings made since the adoption of the old regulations on April 1, 1908, and also add to the requirements a number of features suggested by eight years' experience in meat inspection and conforming with recent scientific discoveries.

The most important changes made as the result of the development of veterinary science and practical experience in meat inspection, are as follows:

Diseased Animals to be Condemned Prior to Slaughter.

The new regulations provide that inspectors shall make a rigid ante-mortem inspection, and if they find clear evidence in the live animal of the existence of a disease which unfits its meat for food, they shall condemn the animal and prevent its entry for slaughter into the food-preparing departments of the establishment. The animal so condemned must be slaughtered in a separate place and put at once into the denaturing tank to be turned into fertilizer, or other non-edible products. This rule is more strict than the ante-mortem inspection prescribed in the old regulations.

Heretofore animals showing some evidence of disease on ante-mortem inspection were slaughtered on the same killing floors as healthy animals and were not finally condemned until they were subjected to post-mortem examination.

Under the new rules, where the ante-mortem inspector suspects a live animal of having a disease which might render it unfit for food, but is not certain of this condition he will, as in the past, mark the animal "U. S. Suspect," which will make its carcass subject to special post-mortem examination. The ante-mortem inspector is also authorized to detain the animal for further observation and taking of temperature in cases where that seems desirable in reaching a decision.

All animals at the time of slaughter even though no symptoms of disease are visible on ante-mortem examination, are subject to careful post-mortem examination before the meat can be marked "U. S. Inspected and Passed" and allowed to leave the establishment.

Withdrawal of Inspection. The regulations prescribe that any inspected establishment which violates any regulation may suffer the penalty of having all inspection withdrawn. This would mean that such establishments could not ship any meat in interstate commerce or abroad. This is designed to strengthen the department's authority to compel establishments to observe sanitary conditions.

In view of the present shortage and high prices of meat, and the fact that every pound of meat that is condemned necessarily adds to the cost of producing meat that is passed, the new regulations provide measures whereby the packers can sterilize and cook thoroughly certain classes of meat and sell it in cans or sealed containers, labeled plainly "Second-class Sterilized."

This sterilized cooked meat which the packers are to be permitted to sell as "Second-class Sterilized" is the meat of portions of animals the fat of which the old regulations permitted the packers to make into edible lard and tallow. The process of rendering served to sterilize the fat and make it entirely hygienic. The new plan extends the same principle so as to utilize the lean portions of this meat which heretofore packers have not been allowed to sell for food purposes.

This action follows scientific investigations made by specialists of the department, and by independent veterinarians and physiologists, which have made it clear that large quantities of meat which are perfectly good food when thoroughly cooked have been condemned because of the presence of strictly localized cysts or lesions in animals. This meat is of the type which the German and Austrian governments have long permitted their packers to sterilize by cooking and sell at shons in a cooked condition.

This meat which, cooked, finds ready sale at a lower price than raw meat in Germany and Austria, consists of portions of the flesh of animals which have localized cysts or lesions which make the immediately affected muscle or tissue unsuitable for food, but which do not affect the remaining flesh of the animal or render it unhealthful. Portions (usually organs or glands) containing cysts or lesions are cut away and condemned. These cysts and lesions do not come from any of the highly dangerous diseases, for any indications of which the regulations require the condemnation of the whole carcass.

Under both the old and the new regulations, in cases where the diseased condition is trivial and strictly localized, the unaffected portions of the carcass, which are free from any suspicion of disease, are passed for food and allowed to be sold in the raw state.

On the other hand, all carcasses and all parts diseased to an extent rendering them unfit for food are condemned. Between these two classes lies the class of meat which may be sterilized under the new regulations. This consists of parts of carcasses believed to be entirely healthy, but which come from carcasses affected to a somewhat greater extent than would allow the passing of these parts for food in the raw state, because these parts may contain a chance cyst which, if eaten raw, might lead to tapeworm or other diseases. These accidental cysts or lesions, even if present, are rendered entirely harmless by thorough sterilization in cooking.

While the packers of Germany and Austria for many years have widely utilized themselves of this method of saving, by cooking, a huge waste of meat, it is not known how far the American packers will care to follow the practice. It is believed, however, that if it is undertaken it will make available a large quantity of cooked meat which is now wasted.

Post-Mortem Inspection.

The provisions relating to the post-mortem inspection of carcasses have been made clearer and more explicit so as to make the rules under which the inspectors pass or condemn carcasses or portions of them exact and in accordance with the latest scientific knowledge. The regulations governing the carcasses of hogs suspected or hog cholera have been made much more stringent.

Safeguarding Inspection Marks.

The rules and regulations governing the disposal of condemned meat and the use and integrity of the Federal marks have been redrafted to meet fully all conditions which have developed during the past six years. As a result, it is made certain that the mark "U. S. Inspected and Passed" can appear only on meat that has passed a rigid ante-mortem and post-mortem inspection at the hands of skilled veterinarians.

Raw Pork Prohibited in Certain Food Products.

On account of the danger from trichinae in pork and the lack of any known method of inspection which affords an absolute safeguard, the regulations prescribe that no muscle tissue of pork shall be allowed as an ingredient of any article such as summer sausage, or similar foods which customarily are eaten without cooking. To be included in articles which may be eaten without home cooking, the pork must have been subjected to a temperature sufficient to destroy all live trichinae, or subjected to some other approved treatment which may hereafter be discovered.

Sanitary Regulations.

The regulations governing the sanitary condition of packing establishments, the cleanliness of employees, and the care of utensils and instruments have been redrafted into a series of definite rules. This, it is believed, makes compliance with the rules easier on the part of the packers and makes detection of violations simpler for the inspectors.

These rules are very explicit as to the provision of washing and toilet facilities for the help, as to the cleanliness of the hands of those handling the meat. The rules also explicitly prohibit the passing of meat which has been allowed to touch floors or become contaminated by contact with condemned meat or knives used in butchering diseased meat.

Imported Meat.

The regulations regarding imported meats are redrafted so as to be more comprehensive and complete. Each foreign country from which meat are being shipped to the United States will be supplied with copies, as will United States Consuls, so that a strict compliance with them may be had.

Meat Heretofore Made Into Fertilizer May be Sterilized and Sold as Second Class Product.

The new meat inspection regulations governing the slaughtering of cattle, sheep, swine and goats, and the preparation of meat food products in inspected establishments, were signed by the secretary of agriculture on July 15, 1914.

All the regulations become effective November 1, 1914, except those governing imported meats, which go into effect January 1, 1915.

The department of agriculture is limited by laws to jurisdiction over the slaughtering and packing establishments which sell their products in interstate or foreign commerce. These establishments slaughter 60 per cent of the meat used in the United States. The slaughtering and packing establishments which sell their product wholly within the state in which the animals are slaughtered are beyond the jurisdiction of the department.

The new regulations, which occupy 87 printed pages, codify the many amendments and rulings made since the adoption of the old regulations on April 1, 1908, and also add to the requirements a number of features suggested by eight years' experience in meat inspection and conforming with recent scientific discoveries.

The most important changes made as the result of the development of veterinary science and practical experience in meat inspection, are as follows:

Diseased Animals to be Condemned Prior to Slaughter.

The new regulations provide that inspectors shall make a rigid ante-mortem inspection, and if they find clear evidence in the live animal of the existence of a disease which unfits its meat for food, they shall condemn the animal and prevent its entry for slaughter into the food-preparing departments of the establishment. The animal so condemned must be slaughtered in a separate place and put at once into the denaturing tank to be turned into fertilizer, or other non-edible products. This rule is more strict than the ante-mortem inspection prescribed in the old regulations.

Heretofore animals showing some evidence of disease on ante-mortem inspection were slaughtered on the same killing floors as healthy animals and were not finally condemned until they were subjected to post-mortem examination.

Under the new rules, where the ante-mortem inspector suspects a live animal of having a disease which might render it unfit for food, but is not certain of this condition he will, as in the past, mark the animal "U. S. Suspect," which will make its carcass subject to special post-mortem examination. The ante-mortem inspector is also authorized to detain the animal for further observation and taking of temperature in cases where that seems desirable in reaching a decision.

All animals at the time of slaughter even though no symptoms of disease are visible on ante-mortem examination, are subject to careful post-mortem examination before the meat can be marked "U. S. Inspected and Passed" and allowed to leave the establishment.

Withdrawal of Inspection.

The regulations prescribe that any inspected establishment which violates any regulation may suffer the penalty of having all inspection withdrawn. This would mean that such establishments could not ship any meat in interstate commerce or abroad. This is designed to strengthen the department's authority to compel establishments to observe sanitary conditions.

In view of the present shortage and high prices of meat, and the fact that every pound of meat that is condemned necessarily adds to the cost of producing meat that is passed, the new regulations provide measures whereby the packers can sterilize and cook thoroughly certain classes of meat and sell it in cans or sealed containers, labeled plainly "Second-class Sterilized."

This sterilized cooked meat which the packers are to be permitted to sell as "Second-class Sterilized" is the meat of portions of animals the fat of which the old regulations permitted the packers to make into edible lard and tallow. The process of rendering served to sterilize the fat and make it entirely hygienic. The new plan extends the same principle so as to utilize the lean portions of this meat which heretofore packers have not been allowed to sell for food purposes.

This action follows scientific investigations made by specialists of the department, and by independent veterinarians and physiologists, which have made it clear that large quantities of meat which are perfectly good food when thoroughly cooked have been condemned because of the presence of strictly localized cysts or lesions in animals. This meat is of the type which the German and Austrian governments have long permitted their packers to sterilize by cooking and sell at shone in a cooked condition.

This meat which, cooked, finds ready sale in Germany and Austria, consists of portions of the flesh of animals which have localized cysts or lesions which make the immediately affected muscle or tissue unsuitable for food, but which do not affect the remaining flesh of the animal or render it unhealthful. Portions (usually organs or glands) containing cysts or lesions are cut away and condemned. These cysts and lesions do not come from any of the highly dangerous diseases, for any indications of which the regulations require the condemnation of the whole carcass.

Under both the old and the new regulations, in cases where the diseased condition is trivial and strictly localized, the unaffected portions of the carcass, which are free from any suspicion of disease, are passed for food and allowed to be sold in the raw state.

On the other hand, all carcasses and all parts diseased to an extent rendering them unfit for food are condemned. Between these two classes lies the class of meat which may be sterilized under the new regulations. This consists of parts of carcasses believed to be entirely healthy, but which come from carcasses affected to a somewhat greater extent than would allow the passing of these parts for food in the raw state, because these parts may contain a chance cyst which, if eaten raw, might lead to tapeworm or other diseases. These accidental cysts or lesions, even if present, are rendered entirely harmless by thorough sterilization in cooking.

While the packers of Germany and Austria for many years have widely availed themselves of this method of saving, by cooking, a huge waste of meat, it is not known how far the American packers will care to follow the practice. It is believed, however, that if it is undertaken it will make available a large quantity of cooked meat which is now wasted.

Post-Mortem Inspection.

The provisions relating to the post-mortem inspection of carcasses have been made clearer and more explicit so as to make the rules under which the inspectors pass or condemn carcasses or portions of them exact and in accordance with the latest scientific knowledge. The regulations governing the carcasses of hogs suspected of hog cholera have been made much more stringent.

Safeguarding Inspection Marks.

The rules and regulations governing the disposal of condemned meat and the use and integrity of the Federal marks have been redrafted to meet fully all conditions which have developed during the past six years. As a result, it is made certain that the mark "U. S. Inspected and Passed" can appear only on meat that has passed a rigid ante-mortem and post-mortem inspection at the hands of skilled veterinarians.

Raw Pork Prohibited in Certain Food Products.

On account of the danger from trichinae in pork and the lack of any known method of inspection which affords an absolute safeguard, the regulations prescribe that no muscle tissue of pork shall be allowed as an ingredient of any article such as summer sausage, or similar foods which customarily are eaten without cooking. To be included in articles which may be eaten without home cooking, the pork must have been subjected to a temperature sufficient to destroy all live trichinae, or subjected to some other approved treatment which may hereafter be discovered.

Sanitary Regulations.

The regulations governing the sanitary condition of packing establishments, the cleanliness of employees, and the care of utensils and instruments have been redrafted into a series of definite rules. This, it is believed, makes compliance with the rules easier on the part of the packers and makes detection of violations simpler for the inspectors.

These rules are very explicit as to the provision of washing and toilet facilities for the help, as to the cleanliness of the hands of those handling the meat. The rules also explicitly prohibit the passing of meat which has been allowed to touch floors or become contaminated by contact with condemned meat or knives used in butchering diseased meat.

Imported Meat.

The regulations regarding imported meats are redrafted so as to be more comprehensive and complete. Each foreign country from which meats are being shipped to the United States will be supplied with copies, as will United States Consuls, so that a strict compliance with them may be had.

FRANCE READY TO AID BELGIUM

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, Aug. 6.—General Joffre, commander in chief of the French armies, notified the war ministry today that his forces were holding the foe in check along the Franco-German frontier. He stated that General Lanier, commanding the northern division, had notified him that his forces were ready to advance and join a Belgian army at Tournai as soon as it was found necessary.

No official report that French troops had gone into Belgian territory was received up to noon.

The little information that can be secured at the war ministry indicates that the first big battle between the German and French armies will be fought on French territory. The main forces of the republic are at least five miles from the Franco-German frontier and will not advance until mobilization is complete.

Germany has been preparing for this war for a number of months, according to information which came here today. One proof is that during all the early part of the summer the German government bought up all the best saddle and truck horses that it could get, buying many at the Belgian horse fairs. The options were taken by individuals and the fact that Germany was behind the purchases did not become known until last week when options on the horses were exercised and orders were sent to ship the animals to the German government.

Count Michell DeAnnville, counsel general for France in Luxembourg, furnished additional proof of Germany's careful preparations for war. He declared today that the Germans began laying extra tracks along the Luxembourg railroad over all lines to Luxembourg some months ago although these extra tracks had absolutely no commercial value because the regular tracks were well able to accommodate all the traffic that went over those lines.

Regarding the invasion of Luxembourg by the Germans the count said: "It took place Sunday. Word was flashed to me in the morning while I was visiting friends. I hurried at once to the legation, destroyed the cypher, placed all important papers in my motor-car and made my way in safety to Longwy, France. On my way I saw a detachment of 1,000 German soldiers, preceded by 40 motor-cars enter Luxembourg and destroy the station."

STOCK EXCHANGE AWAITS CLEAR SEA

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 6.—The New York Stock Exchange will be reopened and business in stocks throughout the country will be resumed as soon as the German naval force in the Atlantic has been either destroyed or bottled up by the allies. This was the decision arrived at today by Wall street, in view of assurances that only the lack of security of shipment to England now threatened an early resumption.

Enormous quantities of American products await shipment to Great Britain and France. As soon as the sea is cleared for German warships in search of prizes, this commerce will be dispatched across the Atlantic. Once delivery is made on British and French soil, the problem of foreign exchange will have been met and international banking arrangements will be restored to a semblance of regularity.

This preliminary settled, a huge syndicate embracing all of the principal financial houses in this country will be formed to protect the stock market from an avalanche of selling orders from abroad. It was these selling orders, brought about by the war panic on the continent and transferred here by the closing of the securities market abroad, which forced the closing of the American exchanges.

While it is considered likely that the fact of the formation of such a buying syndicate will cause many European investors to withdraw their efforts of sale, nevertheless the American financiers will be prepared to meet every demand, so that the stock exchanges in New York and elsewhere may safely reopen their doors and go about their ordinary business. The profits likely to accrue to the buyers of a substantial American industrial securities at this time, it is claimed, will be sufficient to bring into the market many investment bankers who otherwise would stay outside the arrangement.

At the same time the powers of the street are sending out warning that any attempt to start the hoarding of gold, in the hope of depreciating the emergency currency just issued by the government, will be severely punished. Some of the bankers admit that the long continued use of large quantities of emergency currency will tend to bring gold to a premium. They recall that gold remained at a premium for a long period during and after the Civil War. But they vigorously deny any immediate danger of such a condition and declare that the individual who begins such a movement will be visited with all the penalties that the financial world can inflict.

KRIFFLERUSH.
Krippelush, Aug. 6.—Krippelush residents are somewhat excited over reports that this place has been visited by a supposed burglar. Since the reported burglary of Mrs. Christiana's store at Lyonsville, several visits have been reported by the intruder. Several henneries have been stripped of their inhabitants, and a few days ago a man is reported to have attempted to enter the house of Jacob H. Hoornbeck of this place, but was scared away by Mr. Hoornbeck's son who gave the alarm, and Mr. Hoornbeck fired three shots at the fleeing object. So far as can be learned, none of the shots took effect.

The most of the farmers in this vicinity are finishing their harvests. Miss Hulda Sherman and Andrew Dupuy, were out driving on Sunday. George Christiana and wife spent Sunday with friends at Tillson.

Buyers Come From Afar.

The beneficial results to be attained by a judicious use of printers' ink was once more practically demonstrated at Gregory & Company's store Wednesday, the occasion being the opening day of that firm's August sale. The announcement of the sale appeared in the Freeman. During Wednesday forenoon purchasers came from as far as Walton and Delhi, Delaware county, and before 11 o'clock about $1,600 worth of merchandise was disposed of. So great was the rush that the regular sales force found it impossible to wait upon the trade. The shipping and packing department's help were compelled to assist in satisfying patrons.

Local Germans Ready to Fight.

Max Ebel, wurst maker at Jacob A. Lay's market on Hasbrouck avenue, went to New York on Wednesday night to report to the German consul. Mr. Ebel is one of the reservists liable for service in the imperial army but would probably not be accepted on account of being crippled in one hand. Some time ago he lost several fingers incapacitating him for duty. Notwithstanding this Mr. Ebel is strong for the Fatherland and would fight if his services were needed. John Hoffmann, formerly employed by Mr. Lay, is on his way from St. Louis, Mo., to report to the German consul for service.

Outing at Orange Lake.

The annual convention of the Farmers, Fruit Growers and Grangers' Association of the Hudson valley will be held at Orange Lake on August 20. At the same time there will be a session of lecturers of subordinate granges of the district held in Newburgh. The speakers' list contains such notable men as Governor Glynn, former Governor B. B. Odell, Jr., Job E. Hedges, District Attorney W. D. Cunningham of Ulster and John E. Kraft, James E. Slight of Marlborough, who did so much to make the Grange outing in this city such a success, is managing the convention.

C. Beekman Jansen, a machinist in the Cornell shops, had the top of one of his fingers sliced off while at work on Wednesday afternoon. Dr. Stern dressed the injury.

CALLS ON HIS PEOPLE TO DEFEND THEIR HOMES AGAINST THE GERMANS.

Latest photograph of King Albert of Belgium.

Brussels, August 6.—With its declaration of war against Belgium, after having violated that country's neutral territory, Germany finds itself surrounded by foes. The Belgian army has been mobilized and King Albert is preparing to lead his troops into battle. Dressed in his uniform of commander of the military forces, the king made a rousing address at a session of the Belgian senate in which he called upon his people to take up their arms and defend their homes against "the common foe." It was Germany's action in violating Belgium's neutrality that drew England, which guaranteed Belgium's neutrality, into the fight.

Why She Stopped Talking.

A very talkative little girl, who had been chattering away like a magpie all morning, suddenly became silent when a lady, dressed in the extreme of the fashion, called on her mother. Wishing to be amiable, the visitor said to the chatterbox: "Have you lost your tongue, my dear?" "Oh, no, ma'am," was the reply; "only my breath."

Above is shown the only picture taken aboard the Kronprinz Wilhelm, commandeered by the German government, just before she left New York for Germany. In place of her usual 4,000 tons of coal—sufficient to carry her to Hamburg, the liner carried 6,000 tons. The 2,000 extra tons are believed to be intended for the use of German war vessels now at sea.

CHILDREN FIND BLOODY BUNDLE

This morning children at play on Hasbrouck avenue made the gruesome discovery of a bundle of blood stained clothes laying in a vacant lot back of Larsen's paint shop on Hasbrouck avenue at the foot of the high road. When the bundle was opened it was found to contain an old skirt and a pair of stockings. How the bundle happened to be thrown in the vacant lot is not known. As nothing unusual has been seen or heard in that neighborhood it is not thought that any one met with foul play.

ART SILK YARN CO.

Work Was Halted Because Building Contractors Were Reorganizing.

Owing to the fact that work on the new building being erected for the Art Silk Yarn Company along the West Shore tracks has been at a standstill for some time past there has been considerable talk on the street, as usual, to the effect that the building would not be built. Through reliable sources it has been learned that the reason why the building operations have been halted was due to internal trouble in the contracting firm which was erecting the building. It is understood that the firm has been reorganized and that work will soon be started on the building. One of the members of the contracting firm has severed his connection with the company and in doing so has sold the building material which had been stacked on the grounds in order to straighten out the affairs of the contracting company. This action, of course, gave rise to the rumor that the building would not be built.

All five of the applicants for citizenship are residents of different countries. They come from Austria, Holland, Russia, Germany and Spain.

He said that such action will be taken as soon as Japan gets official announcement that Great Britain and Germany are at war.

A new stone walk is the latest improvement to Basil Cudney's residence.

It is a satisfaction to note, however, that our own folks in general do not indulge in this form of liquid refreshment.

The condition of Mrs. Benjamin Secor remains about the same. We are glad to see this good lady sitting on the porch when the weather permits.

CHILDREN FIND BLOODY BUNDLE

This morning children at play on Hasbrouck avenue made the gruesome discovery of a bundle of blood stained clothes lying in a vacant lot back of Larsen's paint shop on Hasbrouck avenue at the foot of the high road. When the bundle was opened it was found to contain an old skirt and a pair of stockings. How the bundle happened to be thrown in the vacant lot is not known. As nothing unusual has been seen or heard in that neighborhood it is not thought that any one met with foul play.

KINGSTON MILK SUPPLY VERY BAD

Expert From New York City Surprised at Condition Found in This City—Tells Women's Federation Something Should be Done.

Dr. M. B. McMillan of New York City, who has been in Kingston since Monday inspecting the sanitary conditions of the city and the sources of our food supply, especially the milk, was very much surprised with the conditions that he found. For two days he has visited many of the farms and inspected the herds which supply the city with milk and in no case, he says, has he found a place where the strict requirements of the law are being adhered to. Many of the farms were in a run down condition, the stables not properly cleaned, and the milk not properly cared for. Debris of all kinds was not properly removed, and in general the chances for the distribution of diseases very favorable. Dr. McMillan says that he firmly believes that the percentage of infant mortality could and should be greatly decreased, which can only be done through systematic inspection of the milk.

The bad conditions are not only on the farms but also in the small retailing places. In one place that he went a small shack, with no roof, a mud floor, flies and filth, was selling over four hundred quarts of milk. Such conditions as these are terrible, and with proper inspection, through an appointed milk inspector, would not exist. He says that the first thing that the city of Kingston, or any other city, needs is the sources of its principal food supplies inspected regularly and through a proper officer who has some power behind him. This inspector, who should be appointed, should have a laboratory where the milk and other foods can be properly analyzed. Conditions as they exist in this city at the present time would not prevent any milk dealer from selling to the public any kind of milk that he pleased. It could be dirty, impure and half water, and no one would be the wiser. With an inspector, who should inspect the milk once every month, at times when the farmer did not know that he was to inspect it, the general health of the young and the public in general would be far better than it is. Dr. McMillan says that there is no need in a city of the size of Kingston for the dipping of milk, which is conceded to be very dangerous to the health. Conditions can not be remedied except through the systematic inspection, which can only be done through an appointed inspector, and it is time that this step in the safeguarding of the public's health should be taken.

Federation Hears About Milk.

This morning there was a well attended meeting of the executive committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs, held at the home of the vice-president, Mrs. R. T. Todd, on St. James street. The meeting was called especially that the executives of the federation might hear what Dr. M. B. McMillan of New York City had to say about the milk supply of the city of Kingston. Edgar N. Palen of the Municipal League, which organization together with the Board of Health, had brought Dr. McMillan here, was also present at the meeting, which was a spirited one, as the women, while enthusiastic for clean and healthy milk, were not anxious to make any more futile attempts such as have been made in the past to remedy conditions.

Mrs. Rodie presided over the meeting and introduced Dr. McMillan, who is both an expert on the subject of right milk and an enthusiast for its delivery to the people. He has had extensive work and experience in the sanitary regeneration of milk conditions in New York City. He said in the very beginning of his remarks, that the three or four days' inspection which he has just made here of both places of distribution of milk and dairies, proved that conditions were far from being the best in the world. He also pointed out the need of a more systematic and complete rectification. He found many cow stables in conditions of filth and unsanitariness that would not be allowed in any other city in the state. They were simply reprehensible and were also conditions in many a distributing station.

He called attention to our big death rate, especially of infants, a matter of such awful import and yet a matter not of hygienic or scientific appeal for one more reform, but a matter of cold fact. Said Dr. McMillan, "It should be a matter of civic pride, that in this city of twenty-six thousand inhabitants, laid out beautifully with its trees and gardens and open streets your death rate of 17 persons a thousand a year, should be reduced to at least that of the city of New York, with its congested west end and east side of foreign population, where the death rate is but 13 a thousand a year!"

He further stated that it could be done. No one will today question the statement that much of our death rate, especially among infants, is due entirely to dirty, adulterated or impure milk. We have no right to lose 104 lives a year here in Kingston, according to Dr. McMillan. That is not only an awful loss in our homes, but it is a loss to the world, and as human life can never be estimated in its full value, it means that these deaths are an incalculable loss. Many, if not all of these lives might be bought by means of purchasing the best of help for proper and rigid examination of the milk supplies and places of production. The speaker claimed that in view of the milk conditions, as he found them here, our present death rate was little if any short of a crime. Having duly emphasized the importance of the matter, Dr. McMillan suggested the following remedial measures: The securing of an efficient, trained and ideally-minded milk inspector, who should operate under the local Board of Health, was the first item. The women, who had already had experience in trying to do some similar work, asked many pertinent questions as to the amount of good such an inspector could effect under the present sanitary code; as to whether or not such inspector could have any supervision or prerogative over producers in other counties and from whom the local dealers purchased their milk; as to the powers of the inspector; and as to the cost of hiring such a man.

It was brought to light through these questionings, that if the Municipal League and the Federation of Women's Clubs were to request the board of health to appoint such an inspector, the board could so appoint him, provided there were any money being raised to pay his salary. It was further learned that our present sanitary code was not at all adequate as far as the milk situation was concerned, but that following his inspections, Dr. McMillan was preparing a report for the board of health and Municipal League, which would offer all needed suggestions as to means and methods of operation, etc., and that the main points needed could be incorporated into the present sanitary code as "Rules and Regulations Covering Cow Stables," for instance. While the inspector could not prosecute in a county other than where operating, he could, on inspection in outside counties from which milk might be brought to the city, refuse to let such producer sell his milk to any dealer in the territory under his jurisdiction provided conditions of dairies and the milk itself were found to be below the standard set by the local inspector. Backed by the board of health, the inspector would have power to prosecute on his own territory if it was found necessary to do so. It would cost $100 a month and travelling expenses to secure a man whom Dr. McMillan would consider thoroughly competent to take up the work here.

It was soon found that the question of money was the one really deterrent condition, provided the board of health acted upon Dr. McMillan's recommendations along other lines. At present the board of health has no specific appropriation to provide for such an inspector. In spite of that fact it was stated unofficially that in view of the urgent need of such inspection of milk in our community, the board of health would assume the payment of $300 for the starting of the work and the Municipal League would doubtless assume the payment of another month's salary and traveling expenses. The question arose as to what the Federation would do to help in this vital work.

In view of the work which it is already doing, and which is proving vital as well, the work of the Federation House, with all its moral influence and the work by Mrs. McMillan, social worker, whose aid in both material and spiritual the executive committee were of one mind that the Federation as such, could not assume this other burden, especially as its funds are not even entirely adequate for the work already undertaken. The Federation would be ready to help in every way possible and the suggestion was offered by Dr. Day, chairman of the public health committee, that that committee of the Federation with the Federation House, should be able to assume one month's salary and expenses. Even so, this would provide for but five months' inspection, to be followed by a relapse that would make the last state of our milk supply undoubtedly worse than the first state. It was, however, the opinion of all that every possible effort should be made to secure the inspector for a sufficient time to bring him here until the board of health should have such meeting as to enable them to include in their budget the necessary sum to continue the work for all judged that the board of health could not do less than that for the community.

Mr. Palen spoke of the efforts of the Municipal League, in conjunction with the health board, and suggested that it be arranged that there be a meeting called by the official boards of the Federation of Women's Clubs, the Municipal League, the Dutch Arms and other organizations. Such a meeting would make it possible to ascertain just what monetary support could be secured for this vital movement. This suggestion was gladly accepted and the meeting adjourned subject to such a call.

LOCAL BASEBALL DOINGS.

Games Played or to be Played by the Home Teams.

The second game will be fought out by the Red Monograms and the Knights of Columbus. John McLean, the official umpire, has resigned and will be succeeded by Matty Benice.

The game tonight between the Y. M. C. Every player on both teams is requested to be at the Athletic field at 6 p. m. so as five innings can be played before dark.

The fast Crescents will line up against the slow Wilbur team on Sunday, August 9, on the bush lots at 2 o'clock. A fast game is expected and anyone who wishes to see a good amateur game should come and see this one. Last Sunday the Crescents were defeated by a team under the name of Ramblers, picked from the Ramblers and Knickerbockers combined, the score being 6 to 5 and the game going eleven innings. After this any team with players over 18 years of age cannot book games with the Crescents, as they average from 15 to 18 years. "Old" Mains and Baylor were the battery for the Crescents. GERMAN REPULSE AGAIN AT LIEGE

Fighting at Close Quarters Continues With Great Losses on Both Sides—German Charge Repulsed, But Belgian Cavalry Loses Heavily in Attack on Germans.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Brussels, Aug. 6.—The battle at Liege was renewed early today and is proceeding fiercely. Fresh German forces under command of the Prince have joined the defeated army of General Von Emmich. The combined German forces are making a desperate assault on the Belgian defenses.

A Zeppelin airship was struck by Belgian shells as it attempted to drop bombs on Fort Barchon. All on board were killed. The Zeppelin ships carry crews of at least 25 men.

In renewing the attack the Germans concentrated their forces against Fort Barchon, northeast of Liege. At 11:30 o'clock the German troops moved forward under the cover of heavy artillery but the Belgians reserved their fire until the enemy came to close quarters and were preparing for their first charge. Then the Belgians let loose a terrific hail of lead from their machine guns, causing great havoc in the enemy's ranks.

The ground around the fort resembled a shambles as the Germans were mowed down. In the meantime Fort Chaudfontaine bombarded the enemy and forced them to withdraw. One Belgian shell fell in the center of the German column and caused heavy losses.

The Germans also battered away with their artillery at all the forts on the right bank of the Meuse. A heavy fire was poured on the Belgian fortifications. Belgian cavalry sent out to attack the Germans suffered heavy losses. A whole squadron of Belgian Uhlans in a desperate encounter with the captain of the Lanciers was killed as he led his men in charge.

Channel Islands' Customs.

The Channel Islands—where there is still in every day use a patois almost identical with the Norman French spoken by William the Conqueror—are the home of other quaint antiquarian relics. A local politician whose election as jurat had been annulled by the royal court of the island on the ground of his having been sentenced to a term of imprisonment some years ago knelt bareheaded at the entrance to the courthouse and exclaimed, "Haro, Haro, Haro, a l'aide, mon prince, on me fait tort." The effect of this appeal, technically called the "clameur de Haro," is to stay proceedings until the petitioner's case has been heard.

In modern times the cry has most frequently been raised to interrupt building operations on land to which the title is disputed—much to the annoyance of unsuspecting strangers who have settled in the islands without being aware of this curious tradition. Popular etymology explains "Haro" as an abbreviation of "Ha, Rollo" thus making the cry a direct appeal to the first Duke of Normandy.

The Most Accurate Machine.

The world's most precise piece of machinery is doubtless the Rowland dividing engine, owned and operated by Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore. This machine, the invention of Professor Henry A. Rowland, long the head of the physics department in that institution, was devised by him to rule diffraction gratings on glass or metal for use in the most delicate kind of spectroscopic work in the place of the glass prisms that are commonly used to form the spectrum by splitting up white light into its component colors.

These gratings consist of five parallel lines so close together that they can be separated only by a microscope of the highest power. Accuracy is measured nowadays by the limit of error. The Rowland gratings are not perfect because perfection is impossible, but their limit of error is one-millionth of an inch, which makes the engine that is able to draw them the record holder for accuracy.—Literary Digest.

The Tibetan highlands of Asia have an area of 770,000 square miles and range from 13,000 to 15,000 feet above the sea.

IN THE DAIRY.

During the summer the cows enjoy the cool nights. If a good pasture lot near the barn can be provided for them time will be saved in the morning, and the cows will do better.

Not one cow barn in a hundred has enough windows. Sunshine is amply provided by nature, and it's a shame to shut it out of the stable.

The watering tank should be well covered, except where the stock are allowed to drink. It keeps the water cleaner and cooler.

FARM WORK HORSES.

A Little Care Will Help Greatly in Keeping Them in Condition.

Summer is the hardest season on the farm horse. By July you can see this very plainly if you will observe the horses that are tied at the hitch racks around the public square or along the side streets on a Saturday afternoon, writes a correspondent of the Farm Progress. Their hair looks bad; there are marks on their backs and shoulders, and the hair is gone where the tugs have rubbed during the plowing.

Many of them are thin and bony, and their manes and tails look as though they had never known a comb or a brush. At the same time you notice these evidences of hard work and lack of care you will see other horses that have been worked just as hard that are in good working condition and spirits.

An irritable, nervous, high strung man will worry a team thin in a few weeks. I used to plow across the fence from one of these irascible individuals with a keen, high pitched voice. His squalling and yelling actually worried my own team when we would be working but a few rods apart. You could hear him for a mile squalling and beating them. His mules would be thin and weary looking by the time he got to the barn.

Elastic Concrete.

Elastic concrete ties of great strength, holding nails and bolts better than wood, are claimed as a new German railway product. Ties of iron and steel have been used to some extent for many years, but are much more rigid than wood and otherwise less satisfactory, and the reinforced concrete ties hitherto tried have proved disappointing. The new concrete is made from a mixture of asbestos fibers and cement.

GERMAN REPULSE AGAIN AT LIEGE

Fighting at Close Quarters Continues
With Great Losses on Both Sides—German Charge Repulsed, But Belgian Cavalry Loses Heavily in Attack on Germans.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Liege, Aug. 6.—The battle at Liege was renewed early today and is proceeding fiercely. Fresh German forces under command of the Prince have joined the defeated army of General Von Emmich the combined German forces are making a desperate assault on the defenses.

A Zeppelin airship was struck by Belgian shells as it attempted to drop bombs on Fort Barchon. All on board were killed. The Zeppelin was carried away by the Belgians. The Germans concentrated their forces against Fort Barchon, northeast of Liege. At 11:30 o'clock the German troops moved forward under the cover of heavy artillery but the Belgians reserved their fire until the enemy came to close quarters and were preparing for their first charge. Then the Belgians let loose a terrific hail of lead from their machine guns, causing great havoc in the enemy's ranks.

The ground around the fort resembled a shambles as the Germans were mowed down. In the meantime Fort Chaudfontaine bombarded the enemy and forced them to withdraw. One Belgian shell fell in the center of the German column and caused heavy losses. The Germans also battered away at the right bank of the Meuse. A heavy fire was poured on the Belgian positions. Belgian cavalry sent out to attack the Germans suffered heavy losses. A whole squadron of Belgian cavalry was annihilated after killing 100 Germans in a desperate encounter. The captain of the Lancers was killed as he led his men in charge.

Channel Islands' Customs.

The Channel Islands—where there is still in every day use a patois almost identical with the Norman French spoken by William the Conqueror—are the home of other quaint antiquarian relics. A local politician whose election as jurist had been annulled by the royal court of the island on the ground of his having been sentenced to a term of imprisonment some years ago knelt bareheaded at the entrance to the courthouse and exclaimed, "Haro, Haro, Haro, a l'aid, mon prince, on me fait tort." The effect of this appeal, technically called the "clameur de Haro," is to stay proceedings until the petitioner's case has been heard.

In modern times the cry has most frequently been raised to interrupt building operations on land to which the title is disputed—much to the annoyance of unsuspecting strangers who have settled in the islands without being aware of this curious tradition. Popular etymology explains "Haro" as an abbreviation of "Ha, Rollo!" thus making the cry a direct appeal to the first Duke of Normandy.

The Most Accurate Machine.

The world's most precise piece of machinery is doubtless the Rowland dividing engine, owned and operated by Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore. This machine, the invention of Professor Henry A. Rowland, long the head of the physics department in that institution, was devised by him to read diffraction gratings on glass or metal for use in the most delicate kind of spectroscopic work in the place of the glass prisms that are commonly used to form the spectrum by splitting up white light into its component colors. These gratings consist of five parallel lines so close together that they can be separated only by a microscope of the highest power. Accuracy is measured nowadays by the limit of error. The Rowland gratings are not perfect because perfection is impossible, but their limit of error is one-millionth of an inch, which makes the engine that is able to draw them the record holder for accuracy.—Literary Digest.

IN THE DAIRY.

During the summer the cows enjoy the cool nights. If a good pasture lot near the barn can be provided for them time will be saved in the morning, and the cows will do better.

Not one cow barn in a hundred has enough windows. Sunshine is amply provided by nature, and it's a shame to shut it out of the stable.

The watering tank should be well covered, except where the stock are allowed to drink. It keeps the water cleaner and cooler.

It's a mistake to try to make a profitable animal out of a runt scrub.

Skim milk is such a valuable feed that the separator is a necessity on every dairy farm.

FARM WORK HORSES.

A Little Care Will Help Greatly in Keeping Them in Condition.

Summer is the hardest season on the farm horse. By July you can see this very plainly if you will observe the horses that are tied at the hitch racks around the public square or along the side streets on a Saturday afternoon. writes a correspondent of the Farm Progress. Their hair looks bad; there are marks on their backs and shoulders, and the hair is gone where the tugs have rubbed during the plowing.

Many of them are thin and bony, and their manes and tails look as though they had never known a comb or a brush. At the same time you notice these evidences of hard work and lack of care you will see other horses that have been worked just as hard that are in good working condition and spirits.

An irritable, nervous, high strung man will worry a team thin in a few weeks. I used to plow across the fence from one of these irascible individuals with a keen, high pitched voice. His quailing and yelling actually worried my own team when we would be working but a few rods apart. You could hear him for a mile quailing and beating them. His mules would be thin and weary looking by the time he got to the barn.

I believe that the general purpose horse is the most satisfactory grade of horse for general use on the farm. For this reason I raise Percherons and have found them a very good all around horse, writes an Iowa farmer. I begin to break my colts when they are three years old or a little more, always putting them alongside of a steady horse.

I give my work horses hay and oats with a little corn and let brood mares and colts run outside all day even during the coldest weather in winter. When the colts are six months old I wean them, giving them a ration of hay and oats. In raising horses I have found that the most profitable returns are received from only the best grades of colts and aim to raise nothing but good horses. The horse pictured is a Percheron grade.

his crop in, and a mule cares about as little for that sort of a thing as any animal you could name. Jerking the line, pulling the animals back suddenly upon their haunches, swinging them sharply around at the end of the row and slapping them constantly with the heavy lines will irritate and worry a team far more than an occasional tap with a whip.

Hammering their legs with the back of a currycomb and brush while grooming them, beating them around in the stalls to make them "stand over" and shoving them over in the stall by "hunching" them with the knee will worry them down. Slamming the harness on as roughly as though you were throwing it on a wooden horse is another trick that will not make a horse comfortable.

Sheep Management.

If the flockowner does not dip his flock to free them from ticks or lice he is wasting time and feed without getting profit. When he does not try to avoid parasites in the flock, does not change them to new pasture occasionally and allows them to drink from old stagnant water pools, he will be forced to learn through loss that he is not doing the right thing. In many cases much loss is attributed to "bad luck," when in reality it is nothing but mismanagement. The proper management of sheep needs to be learned like any other business.

Save the Good Heifers.

One of the greatest mistakes we have made in the past years is not raising our good trade heifer calves. Now the demand for good cows is greater than the supply. When well bred grade two-year-old heifers sell for $75 to $100 it would seem we could market some of our surplus feed to good advantage through this channel. Instead of sending so many thousands of dollars to other states each year and buying something they want to get rid of.—J. P. Manson, Illinois.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, August 6.—They don't come back, eh? Well, look at what "Slim" Caldwell, a Yankee twirler, is doing these days.

"Slim," regarded as "all in" at the close of the 1913 season, has won eighteen games and lost seven this year for an average of .720 against a team average slightly over .400. The best part of Caldwell's showing is that practically all of his games have been small hit and small run affairs, with about half dozen shut out victories mixed in.

If Caldwell, pitching in his present form, had the batting and fielding strength of the Athletics or Giants behind him, it is doubtful if he would have lost more than three of the twenty-five games he has pitched. The Yankees have played miserable baseball behind Caldwell at times and tossed away at least four games. Caldwell wasn't of much use to the Yankees last year. He developed a sore arm soon after the season started. Instead of getting better, it became worse as the season drew to a close. Discouraged, Caldwell told his teammates:

"Next year 'Slim' will be back pounding the telegraph key while you fellows are frisking around in the sunshine. My arm is gone, I guess, and so I'm through."

Pitcher Jack Warhop later slid over to "Slim" and slipped him an osteopath's card.

"Go and see him," advised Warhop. Caldwell did, and the kink was rubbed out of his arm in about four visits.

Here is what James P. Sinnott, writing in the New York Evening Mail, had to say recently after a visit to the rival ball clubs in Brooklyn:

"Looking at the Brooklins and Dodgers both on the same day, gives one a pretty good idea of their relative strength. To the writer's mind, the Brooklins looked faster than the Dodgers and even than the Reds."

"There is no dodging the fact that the Federals are giving a major league brand of ball, at least judged by the Brooklyn standard. The most radical and anti-Federalists, we believe will concede this—if they say them play."

"But that is just the trouble. The most bitter critics of the outlaws have as a rule never seen them perform. Yet, unhesitatingly they tell you that the whole league lacks class and is nothing but a minor league organization."

"We were pretty much of a doubting Thomas ourselves when we first liked to the Tip Top abode. In fact, we were really prejudiced against the new organization, having acquired the organized baseball viewpoint of looking upon them as intruders."

Having garnered about all the loose change in Australia, the American gang of pugilists have been fighting in those parts for some months are now preparing for the homeward journey. Among those who plan to sail back to America this month are Jimmy Clabby, Young Shugman, Eddie McGorty and Young Taylor.

Willie Ritchie isn't as disconsolate over the loss of his title as he was when he first lost it. He just has learned that Ad Wolgast has made more money as an ex-champion than he did as a champion.

Willie, therefore, plans to set

MR. YERRY MAKES SERIOUS CHARGES

Asserts That His Daughter Was Maltreated in Asylum—Testimony Taken at Investigation Which is Not Yet Completed.

The investigation into the death of Mrs. Effie Maley of Yonkers daughter of Joseph Yerry of this city, at the Hudson River State Hospital at Poughkeepsie was conducted in that city on July 30 and while not definitely deciding that the young woman had been improperly treated while in the institution showed that she had suffered from pneumonia shortly after being brought out of a warm bath into a cold and draughty room with but scant clothing on herself and the bed. Mr. Yerry started an investigation by the Dutchess county grand jury shortly after his daughter's death as he found black and blue marks on her body when he went to visit her and declared they had been inflicted by the attendants. No attention was paid to the complaint by the grand jury after listening to the testimony of a few witnesses.

Mr. Yerry was not to be deterred by this action of the grand jury and carried the matter to Albany with the result that a hearing was held at Poughkeepsie last Friday. Examiner Ryan of the state lunacy department was in charge. It was brought out by the examiner that Dr. E. E. Norwood of this city had seen marks of violence on her body before she went to Poughkeepsie as the result of being restrained in bed by her parents and nurses. Dr. Norwood has made an affidavit that he treated the young woman several days when she suffered from religious mania and outside of signs of hypodermic injection saw no black or blue marks on her body.

Joseph Yerry, father of Mrs. Maley, testified that he brought his daughter to the hospital on December 22. On the 27th she was taken critically ill and he went to the hospital to see her. In answer to questions she raised the bed clothes and there were black and blue marks from her knees to her hips. There were also marks on her chin and arms. When asked who had done this the patient began crying. The nurse said Mrs. Maley had done it herself and Dr. Rainer said she had thrown herself on the floor. She had evidently been pinched. He offered to get a private room but the doctor said there were six nurses and they were sufficient. (There were twenty patients in that ward.) A noisy patient had thrown her arms through a window and cut her arms. A patient in the next room was cursing and making a loud noise and requested that she be removed. She upset the table and annoyed Effie very much. They ignored the request, saying she was just as bad herself.

Continuing Mr. Yerry said the day, Sunday, December 28, was very cold and he complained of it being too cold in the room. They said it was the way they always kept it. She was in the habit of sleeping in a heated room with the window up a few inches and wore an undershirt and flannel nightgown right to her feet. When she went to bed at the hospital was "rag" cut off at the waist, no undershirt, and open front and sleeves to the elbows. It was so cold he had to keep his overcoat on. When Dr. Norwood came down with him he put the window down. There was a draught right through the room from the window over the door and one leading to the balcony. A door was open half the time. Her arms were as cold as ice.

On December 27 he said he learned that Mrs. Maley had pneumonia and he went down and asked Dr. Rainer why she did not have an undershirt on. The doctor replied it was impossible to put one on her. He informed the doctor if she had been properly dressed there would have been no pneumonia. The next day she had a shirt on and the window was closed and the patient who had been creating so much noise was moved. She died the next day. His daughter weighed less than one hundred pounds when taken to Poughkeepsie and was very delicate. The patient had been given a hypodermic before leaving Kingston but the doctors at Poughkeepsie did not believe in it to induce sleep. Case unexpectedly one day and saw Dr. Rainer inserting what he called "dope" in her arm. Daughter came from Yonkers to Kingston when taken ill and stayed five days and five nights. No one held there to restrain her. Was not violent at all when at home. Her body looked as though she had been picked up and slammed down and pinched. There were black marks on her arm. Mr. Yerry said that his wife and two other women helped to care for Mrs. Maley while in Kingston. Doctors told him they did not want to struggle with her on account of her weakened condition. Mr. Ryan here stated that Dr. Norwood had seen black and blue marks on the body before she left Kingston. (This is denied in an affidavit which appears later.)

Was informed that they kept his daughter in a continuous bath for one day and thought that was odd. The temperature was 90 degrees. Did not think it right to take a sick person out of a steam heated room and into a cold room. Did not believe he could stand it himself.

Dr. F. L. Barnum was the next witness sworn and testified that the fresh air treatment was quite proper for pneumonia cases. Could not say it was good to bring the patient from the warm bath into the warm room scantily clad. Though the fresh air could be carried to extremes. She might have contracted pneumonia if the facts as stated by Mr. Yerry were so but that did not necessarily cause it.

Mrs. Joseph Yerry, mother of Mrs. Maley testified to her daughter being ill for some time before being brought to Kingston. Was very nervous. Could sleep only when she had a hypodermic. This happened twice a night. Some one was with her all the time but it was not necessary to hold her in bed. Although had to dress her did not see any bruises on her body. Was excited and walked around the room. Complained of the odor in the room as though the patient's body had not been properly cleaned while in the hospital. Saw the bruises on the second visit to the hospital but did not speak to the doctor about them. Asked to have the noisy patient removed.

Mrs. Elizabeth Boose, who testified she saw Mrs. Maley at the hospital, said she saw bruises on the patient's legs. Did not see her arms. Mrs. Yerry had talked to the nurses. Here Mr. Ryan stated that the nurses who were present were the only ones who had to do with Mrs. Maley except those who had left the hospital, one who was on vacation and three others who had been discharged since the death of Mrs. Maley. Never had to hold her in bed and saw no bruises while in Kingston.

Mr. Maley, the husband, testified his wife had a nervous breakdown in Yonkers and the doctor was summoned to the tenth. She was excited and very nervous being unable to sleep. Doctor advised a vacation. Gave her some strychnine pills. At the station she had fainting spells and couldn't walk. No one had to hold her in Yonkers or Kingston. Mr. Ryan here read a portion of the commitment which stated that witness swore patient had become violent while coming to Kingston and had attempted to injure the nurse. Mr. Pilgrim, superintendent of the hospital, testified he had been in that position for twenty-one years and had supervision over the entire hospital. Had visited the hospital five times before Mrs. Maley died. Talked with Dr. Rainer about her. Mr. Yerry complained to Dr. Rainer and superintendent had told him to be thorough and do everything for Mr. Maley's benefit and bear with complaints. When Dr. Rainer said she was very ill and likely to die told him to keep family fully informed and give no cause for complaint. Thought continuous bath was excellent, is used daily in the hospital and every well conducted hospital in the state and country. Is a recognized remedy. Could not remember seeing Mrs. Maley as there are 3,200 patients in the hospital and employees. Receive about 600 patients a year and the death rate is about 250.

Mr. Yerry here interrupted to say that when informed that his daughter was dead Dr. Dodge wanted to cut her head open. He thought it would be better to cut his, the doctor's, head open. He had denied this request, saying she had been slaughtered enough.

Dr. Parsons, the first assistant physician of the hospital said he did not remember seeing any bruises. Saw her trying to get out of bed and the nurses trying to keep her in. Never suggested any restraint. It is rarely used in the hospital. Have had only one case in five years. That was for surgical reasons. Dr. Rainer's treatment met with his approval and is recognized by medical authorities, especially the fresh air. The window was put down to please Mr. Yerry.

Mr. Yerry here questioned the witness if he thought it advisable to have a patient placed in the cold room after being brought from a warm room, having been accustomed to sleep in shirt and night gown. The doctor replied that he did not think it would do any harm. He suggested that the cold might have been contracted coming down from Kingston in an automobile.

Dr. Dodge testified that he had ordered a shirt placed on the patient after talking with Mrs. Yerry over the telephone. Nurses had struggled with her and suspected she was developing pneumonia told them to leave it off. Did not want to tax her heart. Gave Mrs. Maley a sedative the day she was admitted, in her food. She was noisy and excited and struggling with the nurses. On the 28th saw the bruises on her. They were on her arms, legs, thigh and chin. Some of the bruises were probably finger marks where she was held and the rest would be considered a "one man" organization controlled by Mr. Roosevelt. We want a Progressive not a Republican.

Although Edwin Burhans, another Ulster county leader, was present at the meeting he was evidently overlooked as his opinion was not asked.

home in Kingston, N. Y., sometime in December, 1913. She had just come from Yonkers and was suffering from acute religious mania. I treated her for several days and gave frequent hypodermic injections. She became worse and was committed to the Poughkeepsie State Hospital. In January, 1914, I went to Poughkeepsie with her father and found her suffering from pneumonia. She died the same day. I did not see any marks of violence except that made by the hypodermic injection. I never saw any black and blue marks on her nor made any statements that I did see them.

TUCKERMAN'S AGAINST HINMAN

Harvey D. Hinman's telegram to the New York Sun saying that he had not changed his mind about the initiative, referendum and recall since the days when he opposed them in the state senate was discussed at the Hotel Astor on Wednesday by the Progressives who met there, and a reporter for the Sun interviewed several leaders of the herd as to what they thought of Mr. Hinman's candidacy in the light of his disagreement with the Bull Moose on this point. Among the leaders interviewed was L. C. Tuckerman of Milton who is quoted as saying "Hinman's chances have been hurt 50 per cent by this stand. The split in today's meeting, in my opinion and that of many others, is due to a feeling that with Mr. Hinman as a candidate the party would be considered a 'one man' organization controlled by Mr. Roosevelt. We want a Progressive not a Republican."

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

New York, August 6.—They don't come back, eh? Well, look at what "Slim" Caldwell, a Yankee twirler, is doing these days.

"Slim," regarded as "all in" at the close of the 1913 season, has won eighteen games and lost seven this year for an average of .720 against a team average slightly over .400. The best part of Caldwell's showing is that practically all of his games have been small hit and small run affairs, with about half dozen shut out victories mixed in.

If Caldwell, pitching in his present form, had the batting and fielding strength of the Athletics or Giants behind him, it is doubtful if he would have lost more than three of the twenty-five games he has pitched. The Yanks have played miserable baseball behind Caldwell at times and tossed away at least four games. Caldwell wasn't of much use to the Yanks last year. He developed a sore arm soon after the season started. Instead of getting better, it became worse as the season drew to a close. Discouraged, Caldwell told his teammates:

"Next year 'Slim' will be back pounding the telegraph key while my fellows are frisking around in the sunshine. My arm is gone, I guess, and so I'm through."

Pitcher Jack Warhop later slid over to "Slim" and slipped him an osteopath's card.

"Go and see him," advised Warhop.

Caldwell did, and the kink was rubbed out of his arm in about four visits.

Here is what James P. Sinnott, writing in the New York Evening Mail, had to say recently after a visit to the rival ball clubs in Brooklyn:

"Looking at the Brookfords and Dodgers both on the same day, gives one a pretty good idea of their relative strength. To the writer's mind, the Brookfords looked faster than the Dodgers and even than the Reds."

"There is no dodging the fact that the Federals are giving a major league brand of ball, at least judged by the Brooklyn standard. The most radical and anti-Federalists, we believe will concede this—if they saw them play."

"But that is just the trouble. The most bitter critics of the outlaws have as a rule never seen them perform. Yet, unhesitatingly they tell you that the whole league lacks class and is nothing but a minor league organization."

"We were pretty much of a doubting Thomas ourselves when we first bled to the Tip Top above. In fact, we were really prejudiced against the new organization, having acquired the organized baseball viewpoint of looking upon them as intruders."

Having garnered about all the loose change in Australia, the American gang of puns who have been fighting in those parts for some months are now preparing for the homeward journey. Among those who plan to sail back to America this month are Jimmy Clabby, Young Shugman, Eddie McGorty and Young Taylor.

Willie Ritchie isn't as disconsolate over the loss of his title as he was when he first lost it. He just has learned that Ad Welsch has made more money as an ex-champion than he did as a champion.

Asserts That His Daughter Was Maltreated in Asylum—Testimony Taken at Investigation Which is Not Yet Completed.

The investigation into the death of Mrs. Edie Maley of Yonkers daughter of Joseph Yerry of this city, at the Hudson River State Hospital at Poughkeepsie was conducted in that city on July 30 and while not definitely deciding that the young woman had been improperly treated while in the institution showed that she had suffered from pneumonia shortly after being brought out of a warm bath into a cold and draughty room with but scant clothing on herself and the bed. She was in the habit of sleeping in a heated room with the window up a few inches and wore an undershirt and flannel nightgown right to her feet. What she wore when at the hospital was a "rag" cut off at the waist, no undershirt, and open in front and sleeves to the elbows. It was so cold he had to keep his overcoat on. When Dr. Norwood came down with him he put the window down. There was a draught right through the room from the window over the door and one leading to the balcony. A door was open half the time. Mrs. Joseph Yerry, mother of Mrs. Maley testified to her daughter being ill for some time before being brought to Kingston. Was very nervous. Could sleep only when she had a hypodermic. This happened twice a night. Some one was with her all the time but it was not necessary to hold her in bed. Although had to dress her did not see any bruises on her body. Was excited and walked around the room. Complained of the odor in the room as though the patient's body had not been properly cleansed while in the hospital. Saw the bruises on the second visit to the hospital but did not speak to the doctor about them. Asked to have the noisy patient removed.

Mrs. Elizabeth Boese, who testified she saw Mrs. Maley at the hospital, said she saw bruises on the patient's legs. Did not see her arms. Mrs. Yerry had talked to the nurses. Here Mr. Ryan stated that the nurses who were present were the only ones who had to do with Mrs. Maley except those who had left the hospital, one who was on vacation and three others who had been discharged since the death of Mrs. Maley. Never had to hold her in bed and saw no bruises while in Kingston.

Mr. Maley, the husband, testified his wife had a nervous breakdown in Yonkers and the doctor was summoned on the tenth. She was excited and very nervous, being unable to sleep. Doctor advised a vacation. Gave her some strychnine pills. At the station she had fainting spells and couldn't walk. No one had to hold her in Yonkers or Kingston. Mr. Ryan read a portion of the commitment which said that witness swore patient had become violent while coming to Kingston and had attempted to injure the nurse.

Dr. Pilgrim, superintendent of the hospital, testified he had been in that position for twenty-one years and had supervised over the entire hospital. Had visited the hospital five times before Mrs. Maley died. Talked with Dr. Rainer about her. Mr. Yerry complained to Dr. Rainer and superintendent had told him to be thorough and do everything for Mr. Maley's benefit and bear with complaints. When Dr. Rainer said she was very ill and likely to die told him to keep family fully informed and give no cause for complaint. Thought continuous bath was excellent, is used daily in the hospital and every well conducted hospital in the state and country. Is a recognized remedy. Could not remember seeing Mrs. Maley as there are 3,200 patients in the hospital and employees. Receive about 600 patients a year and the death rate is about 250.

Mr. Yerry here interrupted to say that when informed that his daughter was dead Dr. Dodge wanted to cut her head open. He thought it would be better to cut his, the doctor's, head open. He had denied this request, saying she had been slaughtered enough.

Dr. Parsons, the first assistant physician of the hospital said he did not remember seeing any bruises. Saw her trying to get out of bed and the nurses trying to keep her in. Never suggested any restraint. Is rarely used in the hospital. Have had only one case in five years. That was for surgical reasons. Dr. Rainer's treatment met with his approval and is recognized by medical authorities, especially the fresh air. The window was put down to please Mr. Yerry.

Mr. Yerry here questioned the witness if he thought it advisable to have a patient placed in the cold room after being brought from a warm room, having been accustomed to sleep in shirt and night gown. The doctor replied that he did not think it would do any harm. He suggested that the cold might have been contracted coming down from Kingston in an automobile.

Dr. Dodge testified that he had ordered a shirt placed on the patient after talking with Mrs. Yerry over the telephone. Nurses had struggled with her and suspecting she was developing pneumonia told them to leave it off. Did not want to tax her heart. Gave Mrs. Maley a sedative the day she was admitted, in her room. She was noisy and excited and struggling with the nurses. On the 28th saw the bruises on her. They were on her arms, legs, thigh and chin. Some of the bruises were probably finger marks where she was held and the rest due to thrashing around. It was reported she would rush out in the hall and it would take three or four nurses to bring her back as she would strike and kick. She had struck the witness once and bent his glasses. Patient had never complained of abuse on part of nurses.

Dr. Russell had examined the patient on December 28. She was admitted on December 23. Found her very excited and restless. Miss Hannon, the nurse had informed him directly the patient was admitted that there were marks on her body. She refused food absolutely.

Dr. Dodge testified that from the records Mrs. Maley was kept in the bath about an hour. She was moved on account of a weak spell. Her eyes started and she showed other signs of weakness. Dr. Norwood examined patient and agreed as to treatment. Patient frequently jumped or rolled out of bed and may have received bruises in that way. There was a special nurse looking after Mrs. Maley. The noisy patient was four or five rooms away from Mrs. Maley. The bath was not over twenty feet away from her room.

Miss Pauline Hannon, a nurse, testified she had ordered Mrs. Maley taken from the bath as her eyes were bulging. Had not been present when other nurses had tried to put on the shirt or night gown. Generally had windows closed and room warm when bringing patient from bath.

Miss Esther Lovegrove, nurse, testified patient had bruises on her legs but did not see them on her arms. Did not receive bruises during the night when she was in charge. Miss Hannon here testified to making out blank on the day of her admission stating among other things that there was some discoloration on right leg.

Miss Dougherty testified to seeing some discoloration below the knees. Mr. Yerry testified that he had taken the matter to the grand jury and told his story. Mr. Conger demanded a complaint but Judge Vandewater and W. D. Brinler told him they had never heard of such a thing. Nothing had been done by the grand jury.

The affidavit of Dr. Norwood follows:

State of New York, county of Ulster:
Dr. E. E. Norwood being duly sworn, deposes and says:
I saw Edie Maley at her father's home in Kingston, N. Y., sometime in December, 1913. She had just come from Yonkers and was suffering from acute religious mania. I treated her for several days and gave frequent hypodermic injections. She became worse and was committed to the Poughkeepsie State Hospital. In January, 1914, I went to Poughkeepsie with her father and found her suffering from pneumonia. She died the same day. I did not see any marks of violence except that made by the hypodermic injection. I never saw any black and blue marks on her nor made any statements that I did see them.

TUCKERMAN'S AGAINST HINMAN

Harvey D. Hinman's telegram to the New York Sun saying that he had not changed his mind about the initiative, referendum and recall since the days when he opposed them in the state senate was discussed at the Hotel Astor on Wednesday by the Progressives who met there, and a reporter for the Sun interviewed several leaders of the herd as to what they thought of Mr. Hinman's candidacy in the light of his disagreement with the Bull Moose on this point. Among the leaders interviewed was L. C. Tuckerman of Milton who is quoted as saying "Hinman's chances have been hurt 50 per cent by this stand. The split in today's meeting, in my opinion and that of many others, is due to a feeling that with Mr. Hinman as a candidate the party would be considered a 'one man' organization controlled by Mr. Roosevelt. We want a Progressive not a Republican."

Although Edwin Burhans, another Ulster county leader, was present at the meeting he was evidently overlooked as his opinion was not asked.

It is the custom in many sections of the United States for the clergyman who performs the ceremony to kiss the bride. The kiss from the clergyman is a relic of the benedictional rite, which was a charm calculated to bring all marriages to a happy ending.
